Nazi Chief Found

LONDON (Reuters)—American Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell was arrested in a newspaper office here late Wednesday night after evading a ban on his entry into Britain.

Scotland Yard announced early today he would be deported by air to the United States, leaving London about 11 a.m.

British and Irish police had searched unsuccessfully for several days for the 44-year-old American.

ADDRESS RALLY

Rockwell entered Britain quietly a week ago from Ireland to address a rally of British Fascists in the rolling Cotswold Hills southwest of here.

The ban on Rockwell's entry, which he managed to evade, was issued by the British home office in the wake of a minor upsurge of extreme right-wing activity in Britain.

U.K. Jews Plead With Mac

LONDON (Reuters)—About 50 members of six London Jewish youth organizations picketed Admiralty House, Prime Minister Macmillan's London residence, Wednesday night as a protest against Fascist groups in Britain.

They handed in a letter addressed to Macmillan which said "the whole country pleads with you to use the powers that have been bestowed on you by the people to stamp out fascism before it again leads the world to death and destruction."

One of the organizers, Sammy Fine, a 34-year-old commercial artist, told reporters:

"Young Jewish people here in Britain do not fear anything like gas chambers. But they do fear that their mothers or their sisters may not be able to walk alone safely in the streets unless something is done now."

Turbo-Props Obsolete?

LONDON (Reuters)—British Overseas Airways Corporation announced Wednesday that its fleet of 14 Britannia 102 airliners has been offered for sale as part of a program to replace it with jet aircraft.

Vain Call for Frank Ma's Final Thought

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—Elizabeth Ann (Ma) Duncan and the two killers she hired to murder her son's pregnant Canadian-born wife died Wednesday in San Quentin Prison's gas chamber.

The 56-year-old matron, who plotted the 1958 slaying to keep her youngest son for herself, was executed first — shortly after 10 a.m. PDT.

Luis Moya, 23, and Augustine Baldonado, 28, who were paid $300 for killing Olga Duncan, 30, a nurse from Dauphin, Man., died together in the afternoon, shortly after 1 p.m. PDT. Ma Duncan, her lips tightly closed to conceal the absence of her false teeth, entered the green chamber with trembling steps and died quietly without once turning her head to look at the 57 witnesses.

In contrast, Baldonado and Moya were in animated conversation when their pellets were dropped. Baldonado entered smiling. He talked and waved to his half-brother, Daniel Ledezma, 35, of Port Huron, and his brother-in-law Lawrence Roman.

Baldonado's final words were "It's all right."

APPEALS LOST

In the previous 75 minutes, they had lost two appeals to federal judges in San Francisco to stay their deaths.

Mrs. Duncan, her grey hair drawn into a bun, died silently, but her last words to the warden were a vain request to use her beloved son, Frank, as a model that she caused Olga's murder.

Shortly before entering the chamber, Ma Duncan received final communion from Rev. John Muller, Roman Catholic prison chaplain.

Warden Fred R. Dickson said his last words to him were: "I am innocent — where's Frank?"

Final Kiss —Marilyn Was Gone

Argentina War Chief Resigns

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentina's war secretary resigned Wednesday night after an open rebellion of army chiefs threatened new difficulties for the shaky government of President Jose Maria Guido.

Gen. Juan Bautista Lopez told a group of high army officers his resignation from his dual post of secretary and army commander-in-chief was the only way to resolve the situation.

DAY OF UPHEAVAL

The resignation climaxed a day of military upheaval that began when one ranking army leader, Maj. Gen. Federico Toranzo Montero, set up a rebel command post in northern Argentina and called on Lopez to quit.

Lopez branded Toranzo Montero an outlaw but within a few hours four generals had rallied to the rebel's side.

ONE-MAN RULE

The rebel leaders accused Lopez, a crusty career soldier, of wielding one-man rule over the army.

The upheaval in the military hierarchy caused consternation in the Guido government, placed in power by the army last March after a bloodless coup that ousted President Arturo Frondizi, still in custody on an island in the River Plate.

MILITARY FEARFUL

That coup followed victories at the polls by supporters of exiled former dictator Juan Peron, causing fears among military leaders that a Peronist resurgence was at hand.

Among the confused military manoeuvres, a score of army officers were arrested.

Strad Stolen

TRECHTINGHAUSEN, West Germany (AP)—A Stradivarius violin has been stolen from its exhibition glass case in a castle on the Rhine, police said Wednesday.

Caroline Sports Baby Bikini For Holiday in Italian Heat

RAVELLO, Italy (AP)—Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy started her two-week vacation here by resting in her shady villa Wednesday, but four-year-old daughter Caroline rushed off to the beach in a flowered, two-piece baby bikini.

It is Caroline's first trip abroad.

Mrs. Kennedy, wife of the president of the United States, and Caroline arrived in this picturesque cliff-top village in sweltering 90-degree heat after a two-stage plane flight from New York and a breathtaking, 25-mile drive over a tortuous coastal highway with sheer drops of 1,000 feet to the sea.

Caroline, with two little cousins and an Irish nurse, set out for the beach on the azure waters of the Mediterranean less than two hours after arriving.

The cousins are Anne Katharine Radziwill, 3, and Anthony, 2, children of Mrs. Kennedy's sister Princess Lee Radziwill of London. The Princess and her husband, Prince Stanislaus, are the hosts of Mrs. Kennedy and Caroline.

Lumber Feud Deepens

WASHINGTON (CP)—A spokesman for the U.S. lumber industry says the industry may be forced to engage in a general anti-Canada campaign if Canada does not agree to restrict lumber exports to the U.S. market voluntarily.

Henry Bahr, vice-president of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, made the statement Wednesday when asked to comment on a call by the Canadian Lumbermen's Association for a cooling-off period in the Canada-U.S. lumber dispute.

MAY BE FORCED

"For years," Bahr said, "we have tried to maintain peaceful relations with the Canadian lumber industry, but if we get no co-operation here we may be forced to use every political pressure possible to defeat U.S. policies that may be favorable to Canada."

NO EVIDENCE

The Canadian association said Wednesday there is no need and no evidence to justify restrictions on exports of Canadian softwoods to the United States.

"If the Canadian lumbermen want a cooling-off period in order to give them more time to increase their exports to the United States, then, of course we won't agree," Bahr said.

CAN UNDERSELL

"The Canadian association is well aware that through Canadian dollar exchange manipulation Canada is able to undersell U.S. softwoods in the U.S. market. We are faced with increased unemployment. All we are asking is for a fair settlement. We have offered to give Canada 10 per cent of the U.S. market without tariffs — providing U.S. rates go up to 10 per cent ad valorem on additional quantities shipped."

B.C. Bonds Out Today

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier Bennett will announce a new bond issue—possibly partly bonds—at a provincial government luncheon here today. The bond issue will refund the $35,616,000 in Pacific Great Eastern party bonds which mature Sept. 15.

Jamaicans Surround Margaret

MONTEGO BAY (Reuters)—More than 5,000 excited Jamaicans hemmed in Princess Margaret's car when she arrived in this resort town Wednesday with her husband, the Earl of Snowdon.

Police had to clear a way through cheering throngs as the Royal couple were driven to the hotel where they will spend today before returning to London Friday.

The princess, who came here to preside at independence ceremonies on behalf of Queen Elizabeth, wore a scoop-necked mustard-colored dress with a matching taffeta hat for the train trip here from Kingston, the capital.

U.S. Federal Office Joins Court Fight Over Segregation

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—The U.S. justice department joined Wednesday in a court fight against outlawing Negro demonstrations here shortly before a hearing was adjourned with no indication of what decision would be rendered.

U.S. district court Judge J. Robert Elliott adjourned a seven-day hearing on the city's petition to enjoin permanently anti-segregation marches, boycotting, picketing and other protest activities.

BRIEF UNMENTIONED

Two federal officials died with Elliott a friend of the court brief asking that the injunction be denied. The judge made no reference to the brief.

But Mayor Asa D. Kelley Jr. said "It is no more than we expected."

"This is an affront to those of us in the south who are prepared to stand fast for law and order."

Another Blast

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Russia pushed on with its new atomic test series by setting off a small nuclear blast in the air over Siberia, the U.S. atomic energy commission announced.

The students were required to have the consent of their parents before they could undergo the treatment.

A 17-year-old girl who was put in a trance said hypnosis did not help her. She failed one of the two Grade 12 examinations she wrote.

"I actually felt drowsy when I went to study and I couldn't concentrate."

Of the seven who participated, four are attending summer school to improve their grades and obtain passing marks in subjects failed. One boy who is studying this summer hopes to raise his marks by 10 or 15 per cent. His average was 64 per cent, six per cent lower than at Easter.

Besides Mr. Warren and Alberta Health Minister J. Donovan Ross, the hypnosis session was also criticized by doctors and psychiatrists.

"Hypnotism will not help anyone to do anything he is not capable of," said one doctor.

India Ready To Accept UN Rockets

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—India has agreed to have a rocket-launching station on its territory under United Nations auspices for international use, Prime Minister Nehru told a questioner in the upper house of parliament Wednesday.

It would be situated near the geomagnetic equator, which passes through Kerala, South India, he added.

Highest Average: 67

Mass Hypnotism No Miracle for Students

CALGARY (CP)—Seven high school students who took part in a mass hypnotism session to prepare them for final exams have learned it takes more than a wave of the hand to ensure good marks.

With exam results now released, the average "highest mark" achieved by the students is 67 per cent. They were hypnotized by members of the Calgary Hypnosis Society and were given suggestions that they would relax and recall all they learned at school.

They weren't promised a miracle, and none came to pass. Robert Warren, superintendent of public schools here, said the results support his opinion that those who sought hypnotism were insecure about their examination prospects.

"The hypnotists were a courageous lot because their pitch was attractive to those already in line for discouragement," he said. "They expected to relax a lot of the students but those who sought help were probably the students who had failed to work hard through the year."

The highest average mark of 67 per cent was scored by a Grade 12 student who wants to be hypnotized again.

"It helped me I think," the student said. "I felt a lot calmer. I sat down at each exam without having to look at the clock. I'll try it again to relax my nerves and help me quit smoking."

The hypnotists told the students that if they had not studied the traces would not help.

The students were required to have the consent of their parents before they could undergo the treatment.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

MANY school trustees take office in order to revenge themselves on the teachers for the rebuffs they suffered in their school days.

"Don't tell anyone I said so," urged my friend the teacher, who had delivered this startling opinion, "but it's true."

"I worked for a time in a school board office," the teacher said, "and I noticed that the staff looked on all teachers as enemies, whose main purpose was to loot the public treasury by demanding supplies that they didn't need, and by making other unreasonable requests."

"The clerical worker in the school board office were echoing the opinion and attitudes of the trustees. And some of the trustees, as I said, were taking revenge for the annoyances of school days—for examinations failed, and for spankings and scoldings."

"Probably this goes on subconsciously. They don't know it themselves. But there are many other school trustees who serve for quite different reasons—because they truly want to help the community, or because they look on a school trustee's job as part of a political apprenticeship, a stepping-stone on the path that leads to the provincial legislature or the House of Commons."

I told the teacher that his remarks made sense to me.

"I'd carry it further," I said. "I often think that some aldermen and councillors are out for revenge on the public."

"Have you noticed the attitude that some of them take toward town and country planning boards—where such things exist? In fact the planners are there to make sure that the country remains fit to live in—that cities have enough green space, that the landscape is fairly pleasing to the eye, and that the towns don't gobble up farm land too greedily."

"But the members of local councils are inclined to treat the planners as fools, radicals and nuisances. Time and again, they brush the planners aside and authorize the building of eyesores and future slums, in the sacred names of 'progress' and 'good business'."

"True enough," the teacher said, "but we elect them."

"I don't," I objected.

"Somebody does," the teacher said.

Two Killed In Crash

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two men died Wednesday night when their single engine plane crashed into a grove of trees in St. Vital, about nine miles from downtown Winnipeg.

Workmen had to cut through the wreckage of the demolished aircraft to remove the bodies. They were not identified.

Progress Achieved In Continuing War On Cystic Fibrosis

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My two-year-old granddaughter has cystic fibrosis. I understand there is no cure, but she is under medication from a doctor.

From the results of a recent test, I gather she has a good chance. Can you give me any information?—E.T.

This disease causes a thickened, heavy mucus that clogs breathing passages and interferes with digestion as well as the normal operation of other vital organs.

At best, it is difficult to deal with, but much progress is being made by use of antibiotics to curb infections, other drugs to prevent the thickened mucus from clogging vital processes, and diets to coax lots of calories into children who can't absorb enough of their food yet don't necessarily have strong appetites.

Dear Dr. Molner: I've had an infected gall bladder about 10 years and it seems to give me a great deal of trouble now. My doctor advised me to have X-rays taken. I am 47 and would like to know if you advise me to have it removed?—M.F. Have the X-rays. They'll give the answer. Stones may have developed and if present, your gall bladder should be removed.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the difference between twins and identical twins? Are multiple births entirely a hereditary trait?—Mrs. H.F.

Twins are mostly a family trait, but I would hesitate to say they are entirely so. In identical twins, a single female ovum, or egg, has been fertilized by two male reproductive cells. Coming from the same egg, the twins have to develop and look alike. With other twins (fraternal twins) two ova, or eggs, have been fertilized. The release of more than one egg in a single cycle is unusual; hence so are twins.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told that if we don't hear air escape when we open canned goods, the contents aren't any good. I would like your opinion.—Mrs. E.S.

Be careful of dented cans. And especially, look out for bulging ones, because this means fermentation has been building up pressure inside. Food from these should not be eaten. Otherwise, you are entirely safe.

Higher Food Prices Boost Living Costs

OTTAWA (UPI)—A 1.1 per cent rise in food prices during June helped boost Canada's consumer price index from 130.5 to a new high of 131.0, the Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

Housing, transportation, health and personal care and recreation indexes also increased while clothing declined.

The food index rose from 125.6 to 127.0 because of price increases for meats, eggs, flour, coffee, and some fruits and vegetables.

Conference Praised

Premiers Crowned At Kelowna Regatta

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—The premiers of six provinces and standing for two others came to Kelowna Wednesday and were crowned honorary commissioners of the city's regatta. The provincial governments leaders flew here from Vancouver following the third provincial premiers' conference in Victoria.

They were driven from the airport to a lakeside luncheon where they were crowned with yachting caps by the Lady of the Lake, Diane Allington.

Premier J. R. Smallwood of Newfoundland and Premier Duff

Roblin of Manitoba did not attend.

Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia substituted for Mr. Smallwood as luncheon speaker and told his audience of civic government and business leaders from the region that the premier's conference is contributing a great deal to the quality of provincial government and the unity of Canada as a country.

The premiers were fed later at an outdoor cocktail function and then took part in the evening's official opening of the 35th annual Kelowna International Regatta.

SPLIT SECONDS LATER, TURN GETS SHARPER. Outer edge distortion increases. Turning puts terrific stress on your tires every time you take a corner—even at low speeds.

NOW TIRE IS IN FULL TURN. Extreme distortion on outside edges, little action in centre ribs. That's why BFG puts extra rubber where the wear is. It's THE BIG EDGE!

MORE MILEAGE! New BFG Silvertown tires put extra rubber—THE BIG EDGE—on the outside of the tire. Other tires have narrow edges, rubber is concentrated in centre ribs, where wear and action are least.

There's twice as much rubber on BFG Silvertown's outside edges as on other major first-line tires. You get THE BIG EDGE in safety and mileage!

NEW TREAD RUBBER! Making the most of new-car suspension, BFG worked with car engineers to develop "soft rubber" tires. They smooth bumps beautifully, they're tough yet bounce-free, they give a safe, soft, new-car ride. And they cost no more than other first-line tires!

Sabotage Rash Riles Reds

BERLIN (UPI) — East Germany has warned the Western Allies that sabotage of the Communist-operated elevated railway in West Berlin could interfere with Western rail traffic to the city.

West Berliners have boycotted the elevated since last Aug. 13 and there have been incidents involving damage to its cars. The East German note charged that terrorist bands were sabotaging the elevated and warned this could have "dangerous results" for Western Allied military trains entering Berlin from West Germany. "Every attack on the elevated is at the same time an attack on the transit traffic for West Berlin through the German Democratic (Communist) Republic," the note said. The notes were delivered to Allied diplomats in Warsaw. The Western powers were expected to ignore them since they do not recognize East Germany. The West Berlin boycott of the elevated system is estimated to have cost the Communists $3,200,000 in the past year.

U.S. Railmen Set For Strike Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — Railroad unions have disclosed they have ordered 200,000 train-operating workers to be prepared for a United States walkout if the U.S. railroads go ahead with announced job curtailments Aug. 16.

The unions avoided setting a formal strike date for the time being, but said Wednesday "we are prepared in case the railroads put the changes into effect."

The announcement was made here after a meeting of leaders of the five unions involved—the trainmen, firemen, engineers, conductors and switchmen.

The union leaders were said to have avoided setting a strike date formally because of continuing court proceedings in Chicago. The unions disclosed earlier Wednesday in Chicago that they would seek for the second time to block in the courts the railroads' plan for economies.

'Good Progress' In Contract Talks

MONTREAL (CP) — The chairman of a conciliation board studying new contract demands of Canada's 100,000 non-operating employees said Wednesday night "good progress" is being made toward a compromise settlement between the workers and the rail carriers.

Mr. Justice Craig Monroe of the British Columbia Supreme Court said he is "hopeful of the outcome" of the three-man board's efforts to bring about a peaceful end to the contract struggle.

He said he could add nothing to those statements at the moment.

The board—the other members are David Lewis of Toronto representing the unions and Gordon Cooper of Halifax for the railways—is to meet to day with representatives of both parties to reconsider their positions.

There has been speculation—without official confirmation from any source—that the board could perhaps turn in a unanimous recommendation for settlement, something that has not happened in the non-ops' disputes for years.

Imitation Food Blamed in Death

DUISBURG, West Germany (CP-AP)—Plastic articles made to resemble food and sold in joke shops are being tracked down by West German police following at least one death from eating one of the trick products.

The police say they believe the trick food is made in Japan. Cheese and fried eggs are closely imitated.

Investigators say the plastic becomes hard as crystal if eaten. A factory manager in Krefeld, Germany, ate what he thought was a cheese roll last Christmas. He died in February. Doctors found remnants of plastic in his digestive tract.

Having read about the German death, Dr. Robert Mendelsohn of Chicago appealed for advice here last week after a mother brought to him a boy believed to have consumed a plastic egg.

There is some possibility the boy did not eat the egg, although it disappeared after being bought for him as a toy.

At a pre-convention press conference Wednesday secretary John Turnbull said drugs now come under joint control with food in the understaffed food and drug division.

SOME DEFENDED
Asked about the drug thalidomide, blamed for birth of many deformed babies, president David R. Mitchell of Sudbury, Ont. defended the use of some drugs with bad side effects.

One doctor had asked him not to give up all supplies of thalidomide when the drug was recalled by its makers because he wanted them as tranquilizers for a woman past childbirth. He said the drug had no effect on men.

Federation Holds Enovid During Study

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Planned Parenthood Federation of America announced Wednesday that it will continue to offer the oral contraceptive Enovid at its nine affiliated centres in various parts of the country.

The birth control pill has been banned by the Norwegian government and the Food and Drug Administration in Washington has announced it is investigating the drug to determine whether Enovid might have had any connection with the death of six women who had taken the pill.

Prevent Suicide Try

VANCOUVER (CP) — A police sergeant secured by another policeman's leather belt struggled with a would-be suicide on a narrow bridge girder 200 feet over Vancouver harbor early Wednesday.

Sgt. Doug Dunn crawled under the deck of the Lion's Gate Bridge and snapped his handcuffs on the wrist of a sobbing West Vancouver youth who had been threatening to jump for half an hour.

Vancouver fireman Jack Cumber crawled down onto the girder and looped a rope around Sgt. Dunn who held his arms around the youth. Other rescuers on the bridge deck then hauled the pair up to safety.

National Unity

IN STRIKING THE theme of national unity for their Victoria conference this week, the provincial premiers—though representative of all four major political parties—set a worthy example for the whole country to follow at this crucial time in our Dominion's history.

Indeed, it is an example which if emulated by their partisan partners in the federal field could only have the result of bringing credit to themselves and benefits to the Canadian people as a whole.

The very fact that the provincial premiers were willing and able to sit down together to discuss mutual problems calmly and objectively without scoring up even one Tory, Liberal, Socred or NDP bogey surely provides reason to believe that a similar approach could succeed if it were attempted in the more senior circles of government and politics.

However, there can be no doubt that such a move would meet with success only if our national party leaders are fully agreed among themselves that the welfare of the nation is more important to them than their own political aims and ambitions.

As long as they continue their present practice of using every international crisis or every tremor in the national economy as a weapon to further denigrate their political opponents, any hope of achieving a federal or federal-provincial round-table discussion leading to concrete decisions for the good of Canada is slim.

Today the people of Canada are not only tired and bored with the steady diet of political bickering that has been fed them by every party in the land for far too long, but are unashamedly sick of it. Would it be too naive to suggest on their behalf that our four national party chiefs prove their individual boasts of the qualities of leadership they possess by getting together in a spirit of co-operation and good-will to meet the problems that the day has brought?

A Doughty Woman

WHEN A WOMAN makes up her mind about something it takes a deal of shifting. She can hang on with a tenacity that puts a man to shame. Allegedly of the stronger sex the latter weakens more easily when the argument gets too strong.

Something of this is reflected in the award that has come to Dr. Frances Kelsey of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, round whose neck President Kennedy draped a high civilian decoration this week in gratitude for the stubbornness which allied to keen medical perception blocked the sale across the line of the baleful drug thalidomide.

And countless American mothers echoed his thanks.

There might be some thought that investigation and prudence of the kind she pursued was a normal part of the agency of which she is a member, or even that the special honor bestowed on her suggests a loosening of administration if her delaying tactics were unusual, but obviously it was no mean job to persist in her doubts and combat the pressures of male persuasion.

It was determination and knowledge combined with a courageous spirit that enabled her to save her adopted country from the widespread sale of a drug which elsewhere has caused numerous mothers and their offspring perpetual agony and distress. It is no wonder that the people of Cobble Hill sent their native daughter a telegram of congratulations; they had cause to be proud that Dr. Kelsey was one of their kin.

Preserving the Park

WITH THEIR proposals and counter-proposals for the safeguarding of the Elk-Beaver Lakes property against possible highway incursion, Reeve Murphy and Alderman Edgelow have been tripping the light fantastic on each other's municipal corners.

The reeve would have Victoria, the owner of the watershed, dedicate the land as public park. The alderman would have Saanich buy the property from the city and do so itself. Both must know from past experience how futile their suggestions are.

Victoria has two practical reasons for not dedicating the tract as park in perpetuity. One is that by doing so it would eliminate an asset, prohibiting itself from ever selling any part of the land, no matter how little needed. The other is that the property as watershed is exempt from Saanich taxation, but under present legislation a hostile Saanich council of some future year could tax a city-owned park, unlikely as this might appear.

Saanich on the other hand has a fair enough reason for not wanting to buy the watershed, or so it must seem to the ratepayers. This is that other major park purchases lie ahead of the municipality if it is to have adequate recreational facilities to match its growth, and that a large expenditure on a property already serving as a park would be a waste of money that could be better used for the enlargement program.

Thus neither proposal nor counter-proposal can be conceded a chance of success. But the controversy, while not improving intermunicipal relations, may paradoxically serve a good purpose. It should illustrate to the provincial government that Victoria and Saanich are at least united in their concern for the preservation of the recreational property, and would fight side by side against any highway relocation encroaching on it.

Hold the Line?

CANADIANS ARE frequently cited as being reserved and not given to shouting aloud, much less exuberant than their neighbors across the line, for instance. Among themselves however they seem to be the gabbiest of all.

Tables on the use of telephones among nations printed by the London Observer show this country third in the number of telephones per 100 population, 31.82. The United States leads with 40.79, whereas Britain, which apparently does not go in much for telephoning, is at the bottom of the list with 15.69.

When it comes to telephone use however Canada leads the parade. It averages 1,675 calls per telephone a year, with a personal average of 538, compared to the U.S. with 1,264 and 520 respectively, and Sweden, second in telephone penetration, with 947 and 348.6.

Canada must have more teenagers than any place else; or perhaps more feminine talkers.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax ...
By TOM TAYLOR

THERE were guns in front of them, guns to right and left of them, but into the Valley of Death rode the Six Hundred. Magnificent, as the French general said, but not war.

And the first horse to reach the Russian gun, with, of course, his rider Lord Cardigan up, was Ronal, the earl's charger.

Now Ronal has succumbed 106 years after the epic Tennyson made famous. His stuffed equine figure, proudly proclaiming the glory of the Six Hundred for a century past, has crumbled. What enemy guns couldn't do enemy moths have accomplished.

It seems an altogether un-fitting end. Ronal should have been cased in iron, or bronze, not filled with padding; he would not then have been humbled by mere insects.

THERE was thought that local impressarios should have been able to stage the whole shebang of the civic centenary. Probably they would too if given their head in lots of time.

The time element is what makes the success of the Royal Athletic Park project as gratifying, however.

This event was so bogged down until almost the last minute before Mr. Dudley Remus took over and put his American talents to work, that it seemed the dice was all against him. In the result he produced a magnificent show worthy of the highest accolade.

I never heard a single complaint; nothing but praise seems to have followed this presentation in mime and story of Victoria's past.

Hats off to the man whose genius came to the rescue.

MR. Real Caouette promises if he gets into power to give everyone a nice big bonus, more than the $25 Mr. Aberhart talked about 30 years ago.

How easy it all seems. We do get bonuses of course, if you like so to term them: things like home owners' grants, old age pensions, family allowances, et al. But who do you think pays for them? Some secret, private, government board!

As for printing more money isn't it amazing all governments everywhere don't try this simple trick if it will cure their financial worries. After all, the paper and the machines are always quite handy.

And what a wonderful highway of affluence this would build—straight into the poor-house.

FROM coast to coast the saga of Canada runs, and the provincial premiers meeting in Victoria have not forgotten this, as, sometimes, it seems they do.

They have agreed, with the federal government, to jointly underwrite a majestic memorial centre in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, as a highlight of the upcoming national centenary a few years hence.

It was there, in the smallest of all the ten provinces, that Martinism showed the way by meeting in September, 1864, to form a political union, thus setting in motion the steps which culminated in Confederation three years later.

They were the architects of the Canada of today.

The name Charlottetown has a nice ring to it; and it will ring the more sweetly as it is nationally recognized as the fount of the nation.

Social Persecutions

RATHER more than half those executed in the Soviet Union for embezzlement and currency offences between May, 1961, and July of this year were Jews.

At the mass trial in Frunze, the capital of Kirghizia, which ended a short time ago, something like 80 per cent of the accused were Jews. So far there has been no detailed report of the sentences. At least nine were shot, but the central press gave only four of their names, two of them being Jewish.

At many other trials which have taken place throughout the Soviet Union during the past year, the evidence has been so arranged as to emphasize the Jewish blood of the chief accused when this was not clear from their names.

Because of this some Western observers have come to the conclusion that the decree of May 8, 1961, when extended the death penalty to those convicted of large-scale embezzlement and persistent speculation in foreign currency, was conceived as part of an anti-Jewish campaign.

The Soviet man-in-the-street, above all in White Russia and the Ukraine where anti-Semitism is bitter and endemic, is inclined to believe this too. The word has gone round that "they are shooting the Jews," regardless of the fact that nearly half of those shot have in fact been Gentiles, some of them in fairly high places.

The Soviet government has done nothing to discourage this sort of talk; it may even be said to have fostered it. But it is almost certainly an oversimplification and an exaggeration to think of the new attitude towards gross racketeering as a manifestation of anti-Semitism.

Canadian's View of Poland

By FRANCES DEWEY
(Miss Dewey, a thirty-year-old political science student at Carleton University, is visiting Eastern Europe as a delegate to the World University Service of Canada (WUSC) seminar in Poland. Views expressed are those of the author and are not the responsibility of World University Service of Canada.)

Poland is the land of the very old and the very young. Post-war cities stand next to towns that were old when Columbus reached America. And on the streets of both, old people and young children appear in great numbers.

Our first stop in Poland was Cracow, the ancient capital, famous for its Wawel Royal Castle and 600-year-old university. Cracow is a leisurely city. At all times of the day the parks are filled with people walking, pushing babies, and sitting on the gay colored benches. Many have dogs, not only mongrels, but well cared for poodles, Pekingese, and spaniels. Only the tourists and students seem to hurry in Cracow.

We Canadian students hurried, for there was much to do in six days. We visited Nowa Huta, the Ramitton of Poland, with its immense Lenin steel works. This apartment city has risen from a peasant village to a modern metropolis of over 100,000 entirely since 1949.

Nowa Huta has almost no private houses, though there are many playgrounds and parks. The state planning board has had to deal with many problems in settling a peasant population in a modern city. Our Polish professors spoke of families keeping cows and chickens in the backyards. The state wages a continuing campaign against the high rate of vodka consumption. Yet the Poles are justifiably proud of their 13-year-old colossus which exports steel through the Soviet bloc and Afro-Asia.

From a monument to the future we moved to a scar from the past—the concentration camp of Auschwitz. The details of the Nazi horror are carefully preserved here. The sight of rooms full of spectacles taken from victims made our usually exuberant group thoughtful and sober-faced.

None of us remembers the war, but we could sympathize with the Poles, who have lost someone who shares in the memorial that is Auschwitz.

But the past provided Poland with treasures too. The Wawel castle, which towers over the Vistula River as it runs through Cracow, contains glorious relics from the time of the Polish kings. We were all anxious to see the tapestries which Canada had stored during the war and kept so long afterwards. Canada is notorious for one thing in

Anti-Semitism Is Incidental

By EDWARD CRANESHAU

tion of a calculated drive against the Jews.

The continued shortages of goods of all kinds in the Soviet Union, the absence of an effective distribution system outside a handful of great cities, the centralized control of all production with its proliferation of red-tape, all inevitably lead to widespread corruption and to irregularities of every kind. The Soviet government knows perfectly well that if everyone in trade and industry obeyed the letter of the law the economy would soon break down: it has to turn a blind eye on all sorts of infringements, and it will continue to do so.

But organized swindling in the grand manner is another story. In past years the state has been robbed of huge sums by determined and ingenious racketeers exploiting to their own advantage, and with extreme boldness, the tolerated weaknesses of the system.

Mr. Khrushchev last year evidently decided that it was time this was changed.

Thus the savage extension of capital punishment should be seen not as a reversion to terror but, rather, as a characteristically melodramatic attempt to bring stern measures to bear against violent crime and excessive corruption. The fact that the Soviet government found it necessary to fall back on this sort of primitivism 44 years after a revolution which was to do away with the causes of crime is its own commentary on the reality behind the tourist's Soviet Union.

So far there is no sign of any concerted violence against the Jews. Certainly, for familiar historical reasons, one would expect to find a disproportionately large number of Jews among those engaged in financial and commercial pursuits. No less certainly the proportion reflected in the Soviet death sentences is too high: there are at most three million Jews in the Soviet Union today. They are clearly being picked on as, earlier (and before the introduction of the death penalty for currency offences) Orthodox and Uniate priests were being picked on.

In a drive against financial racketeering it is the easiest thing in the world to make Jewry a scapegoat and to make examples of individual Jews. All the more so, when local police chiefs and party secretaries, who are sometimes bitter anti-Semites, are given the chance to let off steam under the general head of a drive against corruption.

This, though unpleasant in the extreme, is nothing new in Russia; and it is still a very long way from a calculated attempt to eliminate Soviet Jewry.

The Packsack

OF GEMOBY CLARK

MY favorite fruit, all the year round, is a big soup bowl or partridge dish of ice-cold canned tomatoes, sprinkled with salt and pepper. It is smooth, cool, fragrant, delicious. It is more refreshing than half a grapefruit. It has only a fraction of the pungency of oranges, just pungency enough.

From the canned tomatoes comes the indescribable musky aroma of the true, homey, ripe tomato; for the fruit is canned at the peak of the tomato season. It has none of the "additives" that creep into tomato juice. It is straight tomato.

The chief employment of canned tomatoes is as an addition to some other dish, such as a casserole. If on rare occasions the canned tomatoes are served as a dish in themselves, they are heated, which drives off a good deal of the September aura of the fruit.

No, sir. The thing to do is take a can straight from the refrigerator, dump it into a generous bowl, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and then seize the dessert spoon.

Land of Very Old, Very Young

1949. Nowa Huta has almost no private houses, though there are many playgrounds and parks.

The state planning board has had to deal with many problems in settling a peasant population in a modern city. Our Polish professors spoke of families keeping cows and chickens in the backyards. The state wages a continuing campaign against the high rate of vodka consumption. Yet the Poles are justifiably proud of their 13-year-old colossus which exports steel through the Soviet bloc and Afro-Asia.

From a monument to the future we moved to a scar from the past—the concentration camp of Auschwitz. The details of the Nazi horror are carefully preserved here. The sight of rooms full of spectacles taken from victims made our usually exuberant group thoughtful and sober-faced.

None of us remembers the war, but we could sympathize with the Poles, who have lost someone who shares in the memorial that is Auschwitz.

But the past provided Poland with treasures too. The Wawel castle, which towers over the Vistula River as it runs through Cracow, contains glorious relics from the time of the Polish kings. We were all anxious to see the tapestries which Canada had stored during the war and kept so long afterwards. Canada is notorious for one thing in Poland — keeping the Wawel tapestries for 15 years after the end of the Second World War!

We were not disappointed. The magnificent floor to ceiling tapestries of Biblical scenes now hang proudly in the halls of the Wawel. We tried to explain that a possessive provincial premier, the late Mr. Duplessis of Quebec, had held up their return. Our Polish students and professors accepted this good naturedly but skeptically. How, they seemed to imply, could a provincial government stop the national authorities if Canada really wanted to give back to the Poles what was theirs?

The student hostel in Cracow bustled with groups from many countries. At meals and in the student "Klub" we met hikers from the Polish youth movement, Bulgarian workers on holiday, East German students, and Americans on the "Experiment in International Living." The variety of ages and types of guests suggested the word "student" is broadly defined in the socialist countries. Communication was difficult, but all could enjoy the dancing and singing which took place each night in the "Klub."

Our sessions of lectures and seminars were interrupted by a two-day trip to Zakopane, Poland's chief mountain resort. Here we saw the site of the 1937 FIS world ski championships last winter. The windows still had posters and souvenirs advertising this event, which brought a great boom to the town. We rode to the summit of one of the Tatra mountain peaks on the Polish-Czech border. One Polish student offered us the chance to escape to Czechoslovakia—if we wished. His tone made it clear he preferred Poland.

Later a Polish student from Cracow took me to a nearby village for supper, to meet his family and see their summer house. A 20-minute bus ride from Zakopane gave me a rough introduction to Polish transport customs. Passengers rushed for the door with no attempt at orderly entrance. They all laughed at their daily game of seeing how many could jam in without the doors bursting. When we alighted I was surprised that I could still breathe.

My friend spoke only a little English, and his parents some French, but we all talked easily of the summer cottage life in our respective countries. The supper menu included delicious hot sour milk, and calf's liver fried in butter made in a churn on a nearby farm. Afterwards we sat outside watching the sunset reflect on the High Tatras. The whole family walked back with me to the bus stop, across fields which have been cultivated for hundreds of years. We traded songs as we walked, though I was pressed to think of many that were distinctly Canadian. As darkness closed in, I thought again how much daily habits and family customs transcend national boundaries.

At the summit conferences they have held since the election, the leaders appeared to reach an accommodation on this point. It was explained that problem was one of language, not of substance. And Mr. Caouette was deputy leader of the party, nationally.

Now, however, the deputy leader did his best to settle the point for once and for all. He was, he declared, "co-leader of the national Social Credit Party—and I am leader."

"I have fought against Diefenbaker outside Parliament," Mr. Caouette declared. "I will not fight for him inside it."

He explained it this way: "The country needs stable government. I would like to see one too. The quicker we have another election, the quicker we will have such a government."

Mr. Caouette, in fact, suspects that he knows who might form such a government. "If there was an election tomorrow," he added, "Social Credit would elect 50 members from Quebec and another 100 across Canada."

No election, however, occurred on the morrow.

Like most of the others that have preceded it, Mr. Caouette's ringing declaration of defiance is in sharp conflict with the pronouncements of his colleague of the tartan bow tie.

It lends support to the general theory that it will be Mr. Caouette, rather than Mr. Thompson, who will call the shot when Social Credit strategy is being planned. Mr. Caouette, after all, will have the interested support of 25 Quebec Socreds in the new House of Commons. The best that the urban Mr. Thompson was able to do in the run of election and to secure his own colleagues, two in B.C. and one in his own Alberta.

Mr. Thompson, not surprisingly, has preferred to take an optimistic view of this problem in leadership. On one occasion when he was questioned about the matter, he insisted that there was no rivalry or power conflict.

But in the recent interviews Mr. Caouette had more to say on another matter. For a long time, Mr. Caouette was in the habit of describing himself not as Mr. Thompson's "deputy" or as "deputy leader," but as "co-leader." In fact, he went so far as to say on one occasion that should the Socreds reach power, he would become "co-prime minister"—an office unknown to the Canadian constitution.

"Let's be open," he urged a group of newspapermen who were interviewing him. "We don't want an election this year. We want to win the next election and need some more time to get ready."

At about the same time, Mr. Real Caouette (the Socred national leader who doesn't wear a tartan bow tie) said that he would be genuinely surprised were an election to become necessary for "at least" 18 months.

All this, of course, happened in the weeks immediately following the last election.

Since then, Mr. Thompson and Mr. Caouette haven't come as close to agreeing on anything except, perhaps, the proposition that they are in complete agreement all along the line.

Recently Mr. Caouette granted yet another in a long series of interviews and returned (apparently voluntarily) to the election theme.

There was no misunderstanding his point of view. Once the House of Commons had met, the Social Credit group would vote for "any" want of confidence motion of whatever kind, regardless of its sponsorship.

Ottawa Report

Socred Division

By ARTHUR BLAKELY

SHORTLY after the June election results were in Mr. Robert N. Thompson—the Socred national leader who campaigns in a tartan bow tie—issued a patriotic appeal to other parties and their leaders to "set politics aside" for the time being and in the national interest.

He was anxious that they should adopt the same high-principled and lofty course which his own Social Credit Party intended to pursue. The people, Mr. Thompson firmly believed, were weary of "irresponsible political manoeuvring." Manoeuvring "by the two old-line parties," of course.

"We do not plan to precipitate an election this year," he said. "We will co-operate with the government on any legislative program which is in Canada's interests in view of our current national position."

More recently, Mr. Thompson made it clear that he did not expect or want another election until sometime in 1963.

To be considered for publication in whole or in part letters must be on subjects of general interest, not more than 200 words in length, and, if signed with a pen-name, must be accompanied by the writer's name and address.

We have been hearing a great deal about Britain's bid to join the European Common Market, and the danger to the Commonwealth. Is it not time we heard from the Commonwealth countries what they propose to do to compensate Britain if she does not join, because of her inability to adequately protect Commonwealth trade?

We cannot expect to be on the receiving end all the time.

Would not a Commonwealth Common Market, to include the seven European Free Trade Association

(EFTA) nations, be a logical and very sensible arrangement, much easier accomplished, and with no danger to any country's sovereignty?

Wonderful Breakfast

I wish to congratulate the Jaycees for the wonderful breakfast they served at Victoria's 100th birthday. This was a wonderful show and very well organized and a very grand idea, Harry Hobson's Orchestra kept everyone's feet tapping and for all who helped to put it over may I say they all did a fine job.

DON H. GRAY,
Lillesdon, Rosario Street.

Directed Economy

In a 12-month period Canada gained 70,000 immigrants and lost 73,000 emigrants.

Unless Canada can reduce the number of unemployed she will not gain immigrants while the letters of the immigrant now here are going back to Europe with the bad news about the lack of jobs. The prattle about unemployment being due to lack of skills is pure camouflage designed to cast the blame on the unfortunate who are out of work.

When are our political leaders going to get it through their heads that some brand of managed and directed economy under the advice of the best economists we can find is inevitable?

Possibly we should try to digest our present population. With four parties in the field we seem to be moving in the direction where governments change like the weather and long term policies are impossible.

Radio and television are making it possible for minority groups to reach their supporters and develop the differences in our society in a fashion which did not obtain 50 years ago.

Naas or Nass

Please can something be done to correct the misspelling of Naas, now even appearing on the beautiful fountain on the precincts of the Parliament Buildings. The Colonist recently has spelled it right, but in several other places it has been wrongly spelled.

It is an Indian name and George W. Deaville who sold CPCT later was manager of the Naas Salmon Cannery for nine years and I visited him during that time and went with Rev. Mr. McCullagh and a party of twelve Indians poling and paddling two huge war canoes up through dangerous rapids and rough waters for 75 miles. So it really hurts when I see the name so lose its connection.

2803 Admirals Road.

Opposed to Circus

I am in full agreement with the letter, "Against Cruelty," Aug. 3, objecting to a travelling circus giving a performance in conjunction with the musical ride to be put on by the RCMP.

I am anxious to see the ride but I would not think of attending a circus where wild animals are forced — by dreadful cruelty — to perform these unnatural acts. I would not help to "break the spirit" of any creature, human or animal.

How Much More Can Chinese Take?

United Press International
From Washington

How much more hunger and economic privation can the Red Chinese take before pressure under the lid of tight communist control reaches a breaking point?

Red China has had three bad harvest years and it is unlikely that this year's crop, the bulk of which comes in October, will be much improved.

The Chinese diet, estimated at from 1,500 to 1,800 calories a day, as compared with the Far East average of 2,100, is better than starvation, but there undoubtedly are pockets of malnutrition.

Red Chinese foreign exchange used to trade with the free world is believed near the dwindling point.

The "great leap forward" in which peasants were ordered from the farms to the cities several years ago in an attempt to build an industrial state has failed and millions of peasants are now being ordered back to the farms.

Last spring they arrived in the countryside in the season of greatest food shortage. This apparently was one factor which led to the flood of refugees to Hong Kong last May.

Western intelligence reports indicate the migration from the city to the farm is taking place in a psychological atmosphere of demoralization and apathy.

Each return of a one-time city worker is an event of personal and national failure. The Peking regime seems to have found no way to overcome this demoralization.

Evolution Likelier Than Revolution

Various efforts to revive public spirit have been tried. More private sale of home-produced crafts was permitted. Peasant farmers recently were allowed to grow food in private plots for consumption or sale.

But farmers have found there is little benefit in marketing food in a country with no industrial base where there are few goods to buy with the proceeds.

The army traditionally has been better fed than the peasants, and therefore more content. But there have been indications army morale has suffered as soldiers receive letters describing how their families are faring. The Chinese are great letter-writers.

The central government appears to have publicly blamed local communist leaders for national failure, and this has created friction between these officials and the people in some areas.

Although this adds up to a grim picture, western experts do not believe the Peiping regime is in any immediate danger of overthrow. They point out that the Chinese are among the most schooled of all people in enduring hardship and tend to withdraw into themselves under adverse conditions rather than revolt.

The experts feel evolution is more likely than revolution — that is, gradual changes in government policies which have brought about the plight.

But when this might begin to appear, no one can guess.

The possibility that these difficulties might lead Red China's leaders into a reckless adventure in aggression in southeast Asia is not ruled out.

Much thought has been given in the Kennedy administration to ways in which the United States might increase China's difficulties economically. But with trade already completely cut off, no one has come up with any very practical means.

Therefore, U.S. policy at the moment is to keep its own defences up, to make clear that it would resist any Red Chinese military moves, and continue to let China stew in its own juice.

Congo, UN Running Short of Cash

Time on Katanga's Side

New and risky moves to prod Katanga province back into a united Congo reflect a fact the Katangans well know: Time is on their side.

For more than two years the province has operated as an independent country while its mercurial president, Moïse Tshombe, alternately has thrown bricksbats at the central government and spoken softly of reconciliation.

Not a single nation has recognized the regime, but the two years have fortified its financial and military position.

The central Leopoldville government of Premier Cyrille Adoula feels this can't go on indefinitely. Both the government and the United Nations force backing it are running out of cash.

The UN is floating a $200,000,000 bond issue to finance the force until the end of this year. At last count, 57 of 104 UN members had paid nothing towards costs of the Congo operation and arrears totalled $110,871,000.

The Adoula government, deprived of rich mineral revenues from Katanga's mines, is reported near bankruptcy. Its deficit last year was $176,000,000.

It is against this background that the United States, meeting reluctance in Britain and Belgium, has been urging its allies to put economic pressure on Tshombe to negotiate in earnest with Leopoldville.

Adoula now has brought the conflict to a head with a series of moves designed to cut off Katanga's communications, at least partially, and to discourage companies from supporting the Tshombe regime.

The first Katangan reaction was relatively restrained. Evariste Kimba, acting president while Tshombe is in Europe, called the moves "stupid" and pointed out that no threats and urged that negotiations be resumed.

How Tshombe will react is anybody's guess.

The official UN position is that the measures against Katanga are entirely the work of the central government; that the UN itself is not exerting pressure.

But the UN force is at least tacitly backing Adoula's play, and the repercussions of success or failure could vitally affect the future of such UN operations.

Immigrants' Main Source Again Britain

OTTAWA (CP)—For the first time since 1958, Britons replaced Italians as the main source of immigrants to Canada in the first six months of this year, the immigration department reported Wednesday.

During the six months 6,963 immigrants arrived in Canada from Britain, an increase of 786 compared with the corresponding period last year.

FEWER ITALIANS
Italian immigrants totalled 6,618, down from 7,314 in the first half of 1961.

Immigrants from Italy were the main source of newcomers in 1958, 1959, 1960 and 1961. Prior to 1958, British arrivals headed the list of immigrants.

Total immigration in the first six months of 1962 was 34,061, down from 36,782 in the January-June period last year.

Poison Bait For Thief Kills Child

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) A Johannesburg man left a bottle of poisoned wine in the kitchen so any future burglar might drink it. Instead it killed his 10-year-old son, a court was told Wednesday.

Douglas Marshall pleaded guilty to failing to exercise reasonable care in the use of poison and his case was adjourned to Monday.

A woman witness said a bottle—produced in court and said to contain wine and strychnine—was within reach of Marshall's children. She said Marshall told her about the poison and said if a burglar broke in "he might drink the poison."

Peg-Leg Gloated At Grim Revenge

By J. T. JONES

When an elderly fellow named Peg-Leg Smith was thrown from a buggy in San Francisco 100 years ago, it brought back to life the story of what must be one of history's most horrible revenges.

Peg-Leg had been a Rocky Mountain trapper, and 25 years before, he had had a battle with a tribe of Indians in the hills along the Red River. The Indians shot him in the leg, and he lost it. After two years in a St. Louis hospital, he was discharged, stumbling about on a wooden leg.

As soon as he was well enough, he got a horse and some blankets and travelled back to the tribe that had cost him his leg, made peace with the Indians and presented them with the blankets.

He didn't tell them the blankets had come from the beds of smallpox patients.

In a few days the disease was rampant among the Indians, and Peg-Leg hid gloating in the surrounding hills.

1862—Birth Of a City

For months, until nearly all his victims were dead.

He passed through Victoria in 1858, with a party of eight or 10 adventurers bound for the Fraser River.

There was lots of doing in the artistic world this week a century ago. Richard Wagner had just finished his comic opera, Hans Sachs, which was to be performed in the fall in several German theatres.

Victor Hugo had finally released Les Misérables to the public, nearly 30 years after it was written, and thereby hangs an odd story.

His first novel, Notre Dame de Paris (better known now as The Hunchback of Notre Dame), came out in 1831 and was a huge success. It enriched its publisher without doing a great deal for Victor Hugo, whose contract also bound him to submit his next novel to the same publisher on the same terms.

When he had finished Les Misérables, he demanded a better contract, but the publisher refused, and so Hugo just withheld the manuscript until 1862, when the publisher died.

Other books were getting pretty daring. The Daily British Colonist — source of all these strange stories — published a review of Barchester Towers by Anthony Trollope and Barren Honour by George Alfred Lawrence.

"They think nothing," observed the reviewer, "of describing picnics in which the young demoiselles sit upon the gentlemen's knees . . . and light their cigars for them."

Meanwhile, civic politics in Victoria were sorting themselves out. The Colonist published letters from Alfred Wadlington and Gilbert Sproat, saying they would definitely not run for mayor of the new-born city. This left the field open to the forceful Thomas Harris, who won by acclamation.

Grandma's Ocean Flight 'Fun' in Small Aircraft

She made the trip, she said, just to have a look around Ireland, Britain and the Continent.

Distressed by Epilepsy

Girl's Drowning Suicide

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—

A coroner's jury found Wednesday a 13-year-old schoolgirl committed suicide because of mental anguish caused by a long history of epilepsy.

Pamela Harrison of nearby Surrey was drowned when she leaped off a dock into the Fraser River July 21.

Police who witnessed the jump said when they tried to coax the girl to swim back she held her nose and purposely drowned herself.

E. A. Harrison, an uncle, said the girl often became depressed if she missed taking pills to hold off epileptic attacks.

He said she had an impulse for self-destruction a week before the drowning told a brother she wanted to drown herself because she was unwanted.

Extra Day to Fish

SEATTLE (AP)—Commercial sockeye salmon fishermen in American-Canadian waters get an extra day's fishing this week.

The International Pacific Fisheries Commission said Tuesday purse seine fishing for Wednesday would be extended until 8 p.m. and gill net fishing would be extended Wednesday night until 8 a.m. Thursday.

A small catch and the small size of the American fleet were given as reasons. The American catch is estimated 35,000 fish under the Canadian catch to date.

Liberals Led Vote

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal candidates received a slightly larger share than Progressive Conservatives of a record vote in the June 15 federal election, a preliminary tabulation by Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay shows.

Mr. Castonguay reported Wednesday the Liberal total, including Independent Liberals, was 2,671,868, or 37.36 per cent of a total vote of 7,166,219. Conservatives, including Independents of that party, received 2,867,553, or 37.31 per cent.

NDP THIRD

The New Democratic Party got 1,036,666 votes, 13.46 per cent, and Social Credit 898,427 votes, for 11.66 per cent. The remaining 14,315, or .19 per cent, went to others.

The Conservatives elected 116 members to the 265-seat House. Liberals 100, Social Credit 30 and NDP 19.

The turnout compares with the previous high of 7,287,297 in the 1958 election and represents 78.5 per cent of the estimated 9,300,000 eligibles. The 1958 turnout was 79.5 per cent.

Another 61,943 went to the polls in June but nullified their votes by spoiling their ballots. In 1958 there were 69,942 rejected ballots.

In 1958 the Conservatives received 53.6 per cent of the party vote, Liberals 33.6, CCF 1.8.

(now the NDP) 9.5, Social Credit 2.6. The figures issued by Mr. Castonguay cover complete preliminary counts in all 265 constituencies, including Stormont, where voting was deferred to July 16. The Stormont count was received here Tuesday night.

Coming from Chrysler

50,000-Mile Warranty

DETROIT (CP)—The Chrysler Corporation Wednesday announced that all 1963 models of its trucks and cars sold in the United States and Canada will carry five-year or 50,000-mile warranties on the main components of their power systems.

send, is the first of such length in the automobile industry.

The announcement said the major components covered are the engine, the transmission, the propeller shaft, universal joint and rear axle. It provides generally for parts and labor to correct malfunctions occurring during the first five years or 50,000 miles of operation—whichever comes first.

The owner, to keep the warranty in force, is to be called upon to follow certain maintenance practices — including 1,000- and 4,000-mile "new car" garage checks, and periodic service inspections each 4,000 miles or two months during the life of the warranty.

Sunday Game - Thanks To Royalty

TORONTO (UPI)—Queen Mother Elizabeth may not know it, but she has helped the township of Scarborough get billiard parlors open on Sundays.

The council unanimously approved an amendment to a bylaw permitting four billiard parlors to open Sundays.

On E&N Land

Tree Farms To Assure Forest Yield

A number of tree farms will be established on E&N lands on Vancouver Island to ensure a sustained yield operation by Pacific Logging. William Sloan, manager, said yesterday.

Strict conservation will be maintained by the company, a subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Railway, undertaking to log remaining E&N lands — forming a vast part of Vancouver Island — which have not already been cut through timber sales, he said.

Mr. Sloan said measures taken will be no different from those by Macmillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd., or Crown Zellerbach.

"In the past we accepted no responsibility, but now we are doing the logging ourselves and are putting in firebreaks," he said.

"As far as possible we will operate on a sustained-yield basis."

NOW OPERATING

With a sustained-yield operation water resources are conserved and wildlife preserved and in some cases stimulated.

The company is now operating at Sooke and hopes to bring out 15,000,000 board feet by the end of the year, said Mr. Sloan.

Plans to move into the Cowichan Lake area soon are also being made, he said.

Barkerville Objective Of Caravan

Provincial and municipal officials from most sections of the province will be included in a motor caravan Saturday to the official opening of "New" Barkerville in the Cariboo.

The motor cavalcade leaving Vancouver's city hall Saturday morning, will be led by Premier Bennett, his cabinet, and at least 20 mayors and reeves.

The Jaycee-sponsored caravan will rest overnight at Kamloops, before continuing to Quesnel Sunday, and to Barkerville Monday.

A delegation of Vancouver Kiwanis Club members will travel by the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

Los Angeles Angels just won't take no for an answer. A surprising American League contender—leaders on July 4, the Angels went into the slump almost everyone but themselves had been predicting and appeared on their way down to the second division which had been predicted for them.

Little League Championship Decided by Two Home Runs

By JIM TANG

Victoria's National League all-stars gave it quite a try last night but there is no answer in baseball, even in Little League, for the home run.

Husky Larry Lenarduzzi did with his bat what he started out to do on the mound, smashing out two three-run homers as the East Trail all-stars defeated the defending champions, 7-4, to earn the right to represent British Columbia in the sectional playdowns which get underway tonight at Little League Park.

FIRST PITCHES

Lenarduzzi, a right-handed pitcher who swings from the first-base side of the plate, hit the first pitch to him in the third inning over the left-field wall after a single by Ernie Deadmarsh and a base on balls to Lorne Buma. And it was the first pitch that was lined over the fence in left-centre field when Lenarduzzi again came up with two runners on in the sixth inning.

Centre-fielder Bob Wallace had opened the sixth with a line-drive home run which East Trail ahead, 4-2, but later events were to prove that Lenarduzzi's second blast was needed.

Nationals outlived the winners, 9-6, and looked more solid defensively, but seven of their hits were singles, and they had a promising inning squelched in the third by some indecisive base-running. And they left 12 runners on the bags.

Thibeault, in trouble often as he issued seven bases on balls, pitched bravely but just couldn't keep Lenarduzzi, who finished the game at first base, in check.

A homesick bunch of youngsters when they arrived here after four postponements of the B.C. final, the East Trail club won't mind the extra stay. It's two weeks ago today since they left home, they've won seven games without losing—most of them in hair-raising fashion—and now they get another chance at Little League's big prize. That's the trip to Williamsport, Penn., for the Little League world series, and they need four more wins to make it.

They'll watch tonight at Little League park as the Hawaiian champions from Kailua and the Alaskan titleholders from Port Richards meet in a quarter-final sectional game at 6:30. The winners of that game meet East Trail in the semi-final at 6:30 tomorrow, after the first sectional game between Oregon's Ontario Elks and Bellevue, Washington champions at 2:30.

There were many factors that went into last night's victory. There was old-man Whitey Severson, playing in a record-breaking 49th league game and celebrating with four goals.

There was Barry Forbes in goal, but he was not the star of the night. He was the star of the night.

Mostly there was the checking, which held Nanaimo to one goal when the clubs were playing even. Three times Nanaimo scored on a power play, and they got the other on a breakaway by Terry Davis when Nanaimo was short-handed.

Nanaimo led 2-1 at the quarter on a pair of goals by the tricky Davis, who finished with three and 50 for the season. But the Shamrocks broke it open in the second quarter when Don Ashbee, Ed

Kowalyk and Reg Foster scored unassisted goals, all beautifully executed plays started by giving that little bit extra.

Nanaimo got as close as 6-4 in the third quarter, but Severson scored two in 43 seconds, both on passes from Kowalyk, the standout player on the floor. It was over then.

John Hanson, on a line with Severson, scored once and set up Severson for the game's last goal as Shamrocks finished strong.

Saturday night they finish the regular season in Nanaimo and they'll rest Severson and Don Ashbee. They go into the playoffs at full strength.

Washington (AP)—The president of the National Audubon Society urged Wednesday night that the United States government ban hunting of ducks this year.

Carl W. Buchheiser told the National Water Fowl Advisory Committee in a closed session that this is a critical year, because duck numbers have been reduced by several years of drought in the principal nesting areas.

His position clashed with the recommendation of the National Flyway Council for easing of Strachan finished in a three-way tie for first place in the Macdonald Match of the Canadian Rifle Association's annual matches here yesterday.

His score gave him a total of 412 points out of a possible 425 in the five aggregate matches run off thus far, a total higher than that of any of the 600 shooters here.

Junior Hockey Sure But Make-Up Doubtful

Victoria, Esquimalt and Nanaimo will have junior "A" hockey teams this season, but the question of whether they will play in a league with New Westminster is still very much up in the air.

The three Island teams and New Westminster were the only clubs to post bonds at a recent meeting, and therefore are the only teams eligible to

Yachting Sabotage Suspected

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—The 12-metre yacht Nefertiti, a strong contender to defend the America's Cup, was damaged Tuesday after two lines holding her bow were cut in an apparent act of sabotage.

The new $300,000 craft swung, as on a hinge, as her stern lines held, into a finger pier at King Point.

Preliminary investigation disclosed a six-inch gash in the hull above the water line and her transom (stern) was chipped from grinding as the boat turned.

Nefertiti and three other yachts are competing to represent the United States against the Australian challenger, Grovel.

The American defender for the September America's Cup race will be chosen after elimination races beginning Aug. 15.

Puck Lessons Start Monday At Esquimalt

Special sessions for pee wee and bantam players may be set up Sunday mornings if enough players are interested. Enquiries may be made by phoning the Sports Centre at EV 4-3261.

By 6.5 Points Over Riders

Lions Rated as Favorites in Opener

VANCOUVER — B.C. Lions open their Western Conference football season tonight rated as 6½-point favorites over Saskatchewan Roughriders despite the fact that Roughriders surprised by trimming Calgary Stampeders, 17-6, in the conference opener on Monday.

Coach Dave Strain, who cut his club down to size Wednesday, planned no change in plans although he said he was impressed with the Riders after watching the opener on television.

Tonight's game between B.C. Lions and Saskatchewan Roughriders will be broadcast over radio station CKNW (880) starting at 8:30 Victoria time.

Lions will start with Joe Kapp as quarterback but whether rookie-import Mel Melin or Canadian Earl Keesey would be in the lineup as reserve signal-caller was not known.

But there will be some new faces in the B.C. lineup, players who could make quite a difference.

Tom Larwood, a Utah State great, will partner Willie Fleming as a halfback; Dick Fouts, a proven veteran, will be at one defensive end and Gary Schreiner, place-kicking corner-backer and defensive half, will also be in the lineup.

Not playing will be the two players who were cut last as the Lions reached their maximum roster quota of 15 Canadians and 15 imports—Canadian fullback Vern Leisner and Gary Schwartzger, a rookie lineman from Montana State University.

Freesias Rewarding

By M. V. CHESNUT, PH.D.

On one occasion when my wife and I were attending the Symphony Ball at the Empress, Agnes called my attention to a petite and attractive brunette with a particularly effective cluster of yellow flowers in her hair. Dangling a bit closer to get a better look, I recognized them as yellow freesias, and everyone in our party was impressed by the grace and charm of these lovely flowers against the girl's shining black hair.

Freesias are not at all difficult to grow if you can give them a bit of protection from the weather during their midwinter flowering period. A small greenhouse or a coldframe with a soil-heating cable will do the trick, and I have even seen good flowers grown in an unheated porch.

For best results, the bulbs should be potted up before the end of this month and purchased from a reliable seedsmen or bulb dealer—you can't get good flowers out of a run-down strain of bulbs. They should be firm, well ripened, and free from spots of mold or other disfigurements, and will cost from 85 cents to $1.70 per dozen, depending on variety.

Five-inch pots will do nicely for freesias, planting six to eight of the little bulbs per pot. Drainage is very important, so the bottom of the pot should hold an inch of gravel or bits of broken flower pot. For a potting mixture, a good formula is three parts good garden loam, one part peat moss, one part coarse sand, and half a part bone meal. The mixture is packed into the pots moderately firm and the bulbs planted with their tips a scant half-inch below the surface. Finish up with the soil level half an inch below the pot rim to allow for watering.

To cut down on the chore of frequent watering, you can start your freesias by sinking the pots up to their rims in the ground, in a shady part of the garden, then spread an inch or two layer of peat moss over the top. If slugs are a menace in your district, better put down bait or slug pellets. Lift the pots from time to time and have a look, and as soon as the grass-like shoots come through, leave them uncovered and exposed to the light and air, shifting them to a position where they will get morning sun.

Keep the plants growing steadily, but don't pamper them and don't over-water—soil should be barely moist, never soggy. Clean, sturdy growth is the object, as lush, overfed foliage won't do well in winter.

Bring them in under cover when the fall rains start, usually toward the end of October. The plants will need all the light and sunshine they can get while under glass, but very little in the way of artificial heat—in fact, the cooler, the better, barring actual exposure to frost.

The foliage of the freesia is hopelessly untidy and floppy, so some support will be necessary. The usual method is to put four thin canes in the soil around the edge of each pot and make a couple of encircling ties with soft twine to confine the leaves and hold them up.

From this point on, all the freesia asks is cool, dry conditions, very careful and moderate watering, and reasonable cleanliness. Your reward will be an abundance of dainty, sweetly fragrant blooms in pink, mauve, white and yellow.

SHEILAH GRAHAM in Europe

Linda Won't Share Limelight

LONDON (NANA)—Linda Christian and Edmund Purdom came to London for his parents' 50th wedding anniversary. When American producer Sam Lee Donnelly discussed a role for Edmund in her "Running Target" movie, Linda asked, "Is there a role for me?" "There are four women's roles," Jean told her. "Oh," replied Linda, "I wouldn't be in a picture with three other women!" Jean is currently negotiating with Trevor Howard and Hildegard Neff for the leads.

Marlon Brando magnanimously conceded that he would not mind if Sir Carol Reed directed the remaining some he has to do in "Mutiny on the Bounty." But Sir Carol, who was the first director of the film, and left after some arguments with Brando, cabled a curt no. Besides, he's busy in Malaga making "The Running Man," with Laurence Harvey and Lee Remick.

Londoners are talking about John Osborne's new play, "Blood of the Bambergs," which is the first time that Princess Margaret has been caricatured on the London stage. It's so obvious that several members of the audience walk out at most performances.

Anita Ekberg is paid $75,000 per picture, but she keeps only half of it. One half is paid to the producer who owns her contract. That's too much!

It might soon be Lord Olivier. Sir Larry is expected to be named head of the national theatre in England, and a percentage is expected to follow. I have a hunch he misses the advice of Vivian Leigh, the previous wife who helped him pick his plays.

Shirley MacLaine and husband Steve Parker are still on a grand tour of Europe. They won't be too long, however, as Shirley has a date in Hollywood, Aug. 18 with Billy Wilder for "Irma La Douce."

To leave London for Madrid, for one paragraph—Orson Welles has signed Spain's leading matador, Antonio Ordaz, for a movie about bull fighting, and Orson will play the other starring role. No, not the bull.

And in Rome, Rossano Rossini is a mystery guest on a television show, and he fooled no one when he sang "Some Enchanted Evening." This is as much Rossini's theme song in Italy as "Thanks for the Memory" is Bob Hope's in North America.

Stanley Donen, who seems to prefer life as an English gentleman, was trying to buy the film rights to "The Public Eye" and "The Private Ear," the latter a London play hit. Play producer Roger Stevens will bring this one to Broadway in 1963.

The Audrey Hepburn-William Holden picture, "Paris When It Sizzles," is coming out from under a lot of problems. At the end of its second week I'm told they reshot the first week. Rumors of Holden's ill-health crop up wherever I go; I certainly hope they are not true.

Director Tony Mann flew to Ireland to talk to the fishing Sir Alan Guinness about a top role in "The Fall of the Roman Empire." ... it can't be true about James Mason and 17-year-old "Lolita" Sue Lyon. But there are whispers abroad here in London!

Ava Gardner is having a quiet romance in Madrid—a young chap at the American air base. Ava pops in and out at the base so often she is treated like one of the family.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flasch

Whenever I get sick and tired of those modern self-tortured, soul-lacerating writers, I think of good old P. G. Wodehouse and feel better again. Here he is right among us, 80 and still writing one hilarious book after another, heartily enjoying the world as it is and doing his damndest to make others enjoy it too.

Suddenly this amazing old man has come up with something like a magnum opus—a book composed of letters he wrote to an old school chum of his called Bill Townsend. It's Author! Author! (Simon & Schuster) and is lots of fun to read.

The letters go back to 1920. During the 42 years since, "Plum" (P. G. Wodehouse) favoured his old friend Bill with sage comments on life, literature, the theatre, the state of the world and sundry other matters, all served up in the inimitable Wodehouse style. He can't help it, he's the kind of man who is naturally funny, whether he's writing for publication or an intimate letter to a friend.

Sheer Enjoyment

Wodehouse's life has been one of the great literary success stories of our time. Since the age of 20 he's made a good living writing what people on both sides of the Atlantic have eagerly wanted, from Saturday Evening Post serials to the lyrics of Jerome Kern musicals and much, much else. His book is full of utterly sound advice on writing and Simon & Schuster are quite right in advertising it as a manual for aspiring authors.

But aside from that, there's always the sheer enjoyment of reading anything at all by P. G. Wodehouse—the man who writes like nobody else. Here he's talking about his plots:

"I am working away at Thank You, Jeeves. The stuff you sent me about the house with the mice in it was just what I needed. It fits in perfectly. The setup is that Bertie Wooster's pal Chuffy lives at Chestnut Hill down in Somersetshire. Chuffy's aunt and her son at the dower house in the park. The son breeds white mice. They smell, and the aunt thinks it's drains, so she and son shift to the Hall, leaving dower house empty.

Golly, What Rot!

"So when Bertie breaks in to get a night's lodging with his face covered with black shoe polish... golly, what rot it sounds when one writes it down! Come, come, Wodehouse, in this the best you can do in the way of carrying on the great tradition of English Literature?"

"Still, it really does work out all right, and I'll bet the plot of Hamlet sounded just as crazy when Shakespeare tried to tell it to Ben Jonson at the Mermaid Tavern. (Well, Ben, look, it's like this: the mad character is this guy who's in love with the girl, but her old man doesn't think he's leveling with her, so he tells her... no, wait a minute, I better start at the beginning. Well, so this guy's in college, see, and he's come home on account his mother's married his uncle, and there's a ghost haunting around and he runs into this ghost and it turns out it's his father and it tells him to drop everything and murder his uncle, on account it was him that murdered him, if you see what I mean. So the thing leads to another and the guy murders the girl's old man...")

Mysterious Object Pictured in Space

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — Space scientists Wednesday revealed that U.S. Air Force Maj. Bob White's X15 photographed a mysterious floating object during the rocket ship's record world altitude flight of nearly 80 miles.

The disclosure by the national space agency came at the same time another X15 pilot, air force Maj. Bob Rushworth, put the supersonic craft through a "shower bath" of scorching air friction.

STRANGE OBJECT

Scientists said a strange grey-white object filmed by a movie camera in the tail of the X15 — not identified and of undetermined size — might have been the same as that seen at the front of the plane "just going along with the air craft" by White.

In White's historic flight of July 17 to an aircraft mark of 314,750 feet he said he "noticed some things . . . like perhaps residue of frost . . . and at one time a piece of something about the size of my hand."

LIKE HOT SHOWER

Rushworth streaked the ship through a sharp 80-degree bank and a series of roller-coaster manoeuvres to "spray" the X15 with hot air flow from different angles.

"It was like turning the X15 about in a hot shower bath," a space agency scientist said.

Airlift Starts To Far North

EDMONTON (CP) — The RCAF has started Operation Backup Seven — airlifting of supplies and equipment from Thule, Greenland, to Alert, N.W.T., Canada's most northern weather reporting station.

Two giant C-130 Hercules transports from 435 Squadron at nearby Naino will fly 1-200,000 pounds of goods to the northern base which is 520 miles from the geographic north pole.

Young Driver 'Negligent' In Car Death

By ED COBBERG

A coroner's jury probing the death of Mrs. Bertha Burton, 3218 Rutledge, fatally injured in a two-car crash Sunday, yesterday cited the negligence of a 20-year-old motorist as the cause of the accident.

The day-long probe sparked a strong protest from lawyer J. E. Gatehouse, counsel for Richard Lascelle, 351 Niagara, driver of one of the cars. Mrs. Burton was in the other car.

Mr. Gatehouse objected several times to newly-appointed assistant coroner Edmond Jorje de St. Jorre's decision to call Lascelle as a witness.

The lawyer said the purpose of the inquest was "to determine the cause and reason for death."

He said his client was presently charged with two indictable offences, "with a possibility of a further offence being charged."

"It is obvious that cause of death was the accident... no further purpose is served to hear Lascelle except to fix liability," he said.

Protection Possible

His objection was overruled by Mr. de St. Jorre, who said the "coroner's position in this matter is set out clearly in the Coroners' Act."

He said Lascelle could invoke protection of the B.C. and Canada Evidence Act to protect himself in the event of further court action.

Mr. Gatehouse renewed his objections following a noon adjournment and was granted a further 15-minute adjournment to "instruct" his client.

When the hearing reconvened, Mr. de St. Jorre told the jury his duties as a coroner included finding out "who, how, when and where" a person met death, and to "affix blame in murder or manslaughter."

Lascelle testified he had swerved his car to avoid a dog while rounding the curve on Dallas Road at Clover Point. He said when he looked ahead, his car was almost on top of the other car.

He said he was driving at "between 15 and 20 miles an hour" and his car was in second gear. A police officer told the inquiry he examined the car and found this to be a fact.

A total of 10 witnesses gave evidence.

Rupture of Spleen

Dr. Garth Walters, St. Joseph's Hospital pathologist, testified Mrs. Burton died as a result of a rupture of the spleen. He said internal hemorrhage and multiple rib fractures were contributing causes.

Dr. Colin Campin, resident on duty in the emergency ward when Mrs. Burton was brought in Sunday night, said her condition at that time "seemed good."

"She had plenty of fight left in her," he said.

But after being admitted to the ward, her condition rapidly deteriorated. Blood transfusions, artificial respiration and injections of adrenalin failed to revive her.

"We didn't know what was happening... we suspected internal hemorrhage," said the doctor.

Mrs. Burton was a passenger in a car driven by her niece, Mrs. Helen Hamel of Canora, Sask. With other members of the family, they were on a sightseeing drive along Dallas Road when their car was rammed head-on by the Lascelle car.

Other witnesses testified to the speed of both cars and events following the crash.

New Charge Likely

Earlier, Lascelle appeared briefly in city police court before Magistrate William Oulter on a charge of impaired driving.

City prosecutor Angus Smith agreed to a one-day remand so Lascelle could appear at the inquest. At the same time the prosecutor indicated a further charge would be laid against Lascelle today.

The inquest jury deliberated for half an hour before returning a verdict.

Mr. Gatehouse said in an interview later he maintained his objections to calling his client to the stand.

Not Criminal Court

He termed the proceeding "unusual" and said the questioning went "very far afield of the matter."

Mr. de St. Jorre warned the jury they were "not sitting as a criminal court" and told them they must find the cause of death and "whether the death was murder or manslaughter."

"There is no suggestion of murder," said the coroner.

He said a verdict of manslaughter must be borne out by evidence of a high degree of recklessness.

"It is not our responsibility to accuse anyone... but if the jury is of the opinion (the deceased) did come to her death by manslaughter, then it is your duty to say so."

He cited sections of the Motor Vehicles Act covering reckless driving and driving without due care and attention and said "there was no evidence of any illegal driving by Mrs. Hamel."

At the request of Mr. Gatehouse, the coroner re-directed the jury on points of Lascelle's evidence.

"If the jury believes Lascelle, it must bring in a verdict absolving him for acting in an emergency situation... but if you do believe there was a dog there, you must also bear in mind there was another vehicle there," said the coroner.

Explains Alumni

President of the Victoria College Alumni Association, Robert St. George Gray will speak at the association's purpose at a meeting of the Rotary Club of Victoria in the Empress Hotel at 12:10 p.m. today.

Party to Thank Pageant Cast

The Victoria centennial committee is giving the 1,000 active participants in the centennial pageant a mammoth party in Royal Athletic Park Sunday in appreciation of their weeks of preparation and stalwart performances in the face of bad weather and postponements.

The party begins at 2:30 p.m. Only those who participated in the pageant are invited.

Teachers Take Study 'Holiday'

Six physics and general science teachers from southern Vancouver Island high schools are taking a two-week sabbatical in the physics laboratories of Royal Roads United Services College.

But it's a free-and-easy course, if you can call it a course, with no fees, no academic credits for the teacher-students and almost no curriculum. The teachers spend a couple of hours each morning hearing lectures from Royal Roads instructors and the rest of the day following their own inclinations in the physics labs.

The Royal Roads physics staff decided earlier this year to offer the two-week session to high school teachers and let the teachers decide, for the most part, what they felt it would be most valuable for them to do.

The teachers feel the chance to use Royal Roads equipment and to talk with staff members—who are as numerous as they are—is helping them increase their knowledge and keep up with recent developments.

Different teachers are working in different branches of physics. They are dealing with topics ranging from the discharge of electricity through gases, through electrical generators to the physical properties of air.

Lectures deal with such topics as nuclear physics and radio waves in the cosmos.

Dr. John Duffus of the Royal Roads staff is in charge of the sessions.

High school teachers attending them are C. J. G. Lonsdale, Cottonwood Road, Chemainus; Middleton Lambert, Ladysmith; and from Victoria, N. K. Preston, 3321 Woodburn; W. A. Tangey, 954 Bank; and Frederick Lawson, 561 Baxter. Walter Thumm of Victoria University also is attending sessions.

No Panic On High

Parachuting dropping from the sky near the observatory in Nanaimo last night turned out to be members of the Victoria Sky Divers making practice drops.

The telephone received several long-distance calls from Nanaimo residents who feared an aircraft may have been in trouble, but Patricia Bay Airport employees said it was the Sky Divers in action.

Motorcade Report

No province in Canada—including British Columbia—has cornered the market on beautiful scenery, Ron Gadsby, the official B.C. member of the Trans-Canada Highway Motorcade, reported yesterday from Halifax.

He said four members were undeterred by at least 200 miles of dusty road construction on the first leg of the 4,800-mile journey and an official boycott of the Trans-Canada motorcade by officials of Newfoundland's capital city, St. John's.

"In case British Columbians get carried away with the thought that our province has everything," said

Mr. Gadsby, "let them be assured Newfoundland has everything we have on an only slightly less spectacular scale."

He said the Maritime province had scenery to match the Fraser Valley, the Cariboo and the Forbidden Plateau along the 700 miles of highway between St. John's and Port au Basque.

At Gander, Mayor Jack Robertson said: "After three centuries of slumber we are coming alive in a hurry." Cornerbrook Mayor Allison Bugden also gave the tour a warm welcome.

The tour boarded a ferry at Port au Basque after a near-accident as one of the cars in the motorcade simultaneously blew two tubeless tires on the rough roads. The highway trip resumed at North Sydney, N.S.

On the green headland which contains some of the major coal producers in eastern Canada there is no evidence of the spectre of economic disaster through impending closure.

The trip to Halifax included stops at Bedford to view the Alexander Graham Bell museum, and the beautiful city of Truro once again underlined that this country should be seen by every Canadian, he said.

The port of gold still lies, for Mr. Gadsby, anywhere, at the end of the 4,000-mile journey when the motorcade enters B.C.

Planner Fears Ruin

Commercialism Wave Threatening Causeway

By JACK FREY

Creeping commercialism in the Causeway area could lead to the ruin of this popular tourist attraction, Capital Region Planning Board director Anthony Roberts warned last night.

On Bingo

Nobody Wants A Test

Bingo operators in Greater Victoria have not challenged a recent clampdown based on federal laws controlling regularity of the games.

The attorney-general's department, responsible for enforcement of the federal law, ordered RCMP throughout B.C. to keep closer to the line.

HAS CONTROL

Any objections to the policy should be made to Parliament which has control over the legislation, said Attorney-General Bonner.

But as of yesterday, the attorney-general's department had heard of no test case in the making.

NO REQUEST

George Chatterton, Tory MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, said no one has formally asked him to press in Ottawa for more leniency in bingo control regulations.

"I'm quite willing to take up the cudgel for any service club or charitable organization which relies on bingo to finance worthy purposes," he said.

This problem also was the subject of a recent meeting of the retail merchants group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

The gradual appearance of signs and sporadic forays of vendors on the Causeway "indicate a natural tendency to cash in on the big concentration of tourists," said Mr. Roberts.

HUSTLED AWAY

On occasion he has seen ice cream trucks and vending machines in the vicinity. They apparently were subsequently hustled away by city fathers.

Gradually, more and more signs are being erected in the Causeway area.

"It is not serious at the moment, but it is increasing. I would like to see the commercialism checked before the atmosphere which attracts tourists to the Causeway is lost."

LINES NECESSARY

Buses are necessary in the area, the planner conceded. However, "some lines will have to be drawn on that one of these days if tourist traffic continues to increase."

But Lloyd Davies, chairman of the retail merchants group, said his group has already decided to ask city council to limit the number of sightseeing bus stalls next year to one stall per operator.

NO QUARREL

"The merchants felt the commercialism was being overdone. We have no quarrel with anyone in particular, but some operators had three and four stalls, taking up too big a stretch of the Causeway," he said.

"We also suggested to city council that the Tally-Ho tours be rerouted away from the lower part of Douglas Street."

AT LOWER LEVEL

Mr. Roberts would like to see the waterline of the Causeway enlarged to include a pedestrian promenade outside and at a lower level from the high stone wall.

He envisages it as "an active area with landscaping, art displays, information kiosks and general displays."

CORING SAMPLES

But this plan will depend a lot on what was found when coring samples were taken in the area last week, he said.

The city had asked for a government survey to find some means of strengthening Victoria's famous Causeway wall enough to permit safe dredging of the Inner Harbour.

NO REPORT YET

Federal district engineer Wallace Walker of Vancouver said last night he hasn't yet received a report from consultants on the drilling.

He declined to comment on the proposed pedestrian promenade suggested by the CRPB official on the grounds he is not permitted to become involved in proposals of this type.

Fresh Peach Torte A Surprise Dessert

By SUSAN DELIGHT

Copley News Service
A surprise dessert, a fresh peach torte, can be put in the oven before retiring, the heat turned off, then taken from the oven the next morning. It is very important that the oven remain closed during the 12 hours the torte is in the oven.

FRESH PEACH TORTE
Six large egg whites, ¼ tsp. salt, ½ tsp. cream of tartar, ¼ cup sugar, 1½ cups pure vanilla extract, 1½ lbs. (about 6 medium) fresh peaches, 2 tbsps. fresh lemon juice, ¼ cup sugar, 1 envelope unflavored gelatin, 2 tbsps. water, vanilla whipped cream.

Place egg whites, salt and cream of tartar in the large bowl of an electric mixer. Beat until eggs have doubled in volume. Beat in one tablespoon sugar at a time, being sure each addition of sugar is thoroughly dissolved before adding the next spoonful. It is impossible to beat this too much. Beat in pure vanilla extract. Spoon into a buttered 8-inch spring form pan. With the back of a tablespoon make a depression in centre about five inches wide, and one inch deep. Place in a preheated oven (400 degrees). Close door and turn off heat. Leave torte to bake slowly 12 hours or overnight. Do not open the oven door, even once. Remove from oven. Run a spatula around sides to loosen torte from pan.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I was widowed at the age of 31. My daughter and I were just like sisters. We went every place together and always had a wonderful time. She had a good job, and never would accept a marriage proposal because she was content at home with me.

Two years ago she was transferred to another city. I was very lonely at first. Then I met a man and started to go out. My daughter was happy for me. When I told her he wanted me to marry him she was all for it. I've been married for 13 months and now I think I made a mistake.

My daughter is being transferred back here and I want her to live with us. My husband is violently opposed to the idea. Do you think it is right for a man to be jealous of his wife's daughter? I feel that since my daughter passed up marriage to be with me that I should divorce this man and make a home for her. What do you think?—DARDANELLA.

Dear Dardanelle: Forget the sister act and be a wife. If your daughter has any brains she'll refuse the transfer even if it means her job. This girl needs to make a life for herself and she'll never do it if she moves back to the city in which you live.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been dating a fine young man for several months. He hopes to be a certified public accountant next year. Perhaps this romance will never blossom into anything permanent, but even so I like him and I want to help him.

Norman (not his real name) is so nervous about his personal grooming that sometimes I'm embarrassed to be seen in public with him. He never cleans his fingernails. His hair is always in need of a trim, and I don't believe he ever has suits pressed on his shoes shined.

I want him to succeed in his profession even if we don't marry and I know personal appearance is important. But how do I tell him without offending? Should I joke about it? I'm afraid to try a serious discussion. Or would it be best to accept him for his good qualities (which are many) and forget the rest?—WALKING ON EGGS.

Dear Walking: This is no joking matter. Have a straight talk with the young man. If he's too thick-skulled to appreciate the favor, then he is the loser, not you.

Don't make the fatal error of remaining silent in the hope that you can change him after marriage. A man who won't clean himself up for his sweetheart certainly won't do it for his wife.

Beauty Expert Says

Teen-Agers Shouldn't Try to Hide Pimples

TORONTO (TNS) — If you're a teen-ager and you have a problem complexion, don't try to hide it under layers of heavy make-up.

This advice comes from a young woman who suffered through the agonies of a blemished face while a teen-ager herself. Now she has a lovely, smooth complexion which glows through a minimum of make-up.

She's Mrs. Volma Pommer, a Toronto beauty expert, who lectures high school students and business school girls on how to treat a troubled skin.

CONFIDENCE

"When a teen-ager has a bad complexion, it often takes her confidence away and she'll try to cover it up with heavy make-up," says Mrs. Pommer.

"But there's no use just trying to hide the problem. You may think the make-up makes you more glamorous, but it just looks like a gaudy mask."

Pimples are caused by a number of reasons, among them eating the wrong kind of food (too many fatty foods); not getting enough sleep; not cleaning your face well enough; emotional problems.

Mrs. Pommer recommends a "fresh, glowing look" for teen-agers.

And this means saving the eye-makeup for evening use only and not appearing at school with sooty eyes; wearing only a light colored lipstick and perhaps a dash of powder; not piling your hair high with backcombing like a Grandeur Guard.

Using soap and water on your face will dry out your skin, she says, and cleansing cream only takes off surface make-up and leaves the pores clogged.

She recommends a four-step beauty treatment using a deep pore cleansing lotion which opens the skin pores, cleanses them, kills bacteria, then closes the pores, leaving a 24-hour protective film.

Remove make-up before bedtime with the cleansing lotion poured on a pad of cotton and repeat two or three times until the pad is perfectly clean. "Now," she says, "you have what is called a naked face."

Then add a moisture lotion. In the morning, remove the pad, then put on moisture lotion and dirt with cleansing lotion on a cotton pad.

Easy Does It

WITH WIN PACKER

Dear Mrs. Packer: I would like to ask what you could recommend to take out a perspiration stain. I have just worn my beige sleeveless brocade outfit dress once and have acquired a stain under the arm. Can I remove this stain without having the dress professionally cleaned? Mrs. Sheila E.

Dear Mrs. E. You would be well advised to send your good satin dress to the dry cleaners rather than try to remove the stain yourself. It will be beautifully fresh for the next wearing when you could prevent a recurrence of staining by using a protective deodorant.

However, if you wish to try a home remedy, hold the material over an open bottle of ammonia and let the fumes hit the stain, then sponge with white vinegar. If stain remains apply pepsin powder, allow to stand for half an hour then brush off. Information covering your second inquiry has been mailed to you.

Old Coats Started Business

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Miss Jimmi York is a fast fur hat designer helping to put millinery on the heads of women gone hatless for years. "I'm just trying to revolutionize the millinery industry, that's all," said the designer-manufacturer, a newcomer to the field.

"Most milliners are still making hats to go to church... that's why the industry's sick."

Miss York, a tall, smart-looking brunette born 34 years ago in Welch, W.Va., got into millinery because "I saw all those hundreds and hundreds of fur coats just sitting in that basement going to waste."

Her job took her into the wholesale clothing market constantly, and it was thus that one day a furrier showed her a supply of racoon, fox and opossum coats he couldn't sell.

She'd had a hunch that fur hats would fly high in fashion and there would be big demand for any that could be sold at medium instead of sky-high prices. The old coats offered the answer.

That was three years ago. Today, she said in an interview, the hot-head had carried the firm, Fur Flyers, Inc., for its first two years. It sold over a quarter of a million dollars, she said.

"I was the hula hoop of the millinery business," she said.

Seven-year-old Mortie Lowdon proudly displays the medal she won by coming second in the open baton twirling contest at the Seattle World Fair on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Archie Lowdon, 742 Canterbury Road, and is a member of Eileen Kullman's Blue Bird Majorettes. (Colonist photo)

Fashions May Have Changed Course of Canadian History

MONTREAL — Historians never looked at it that way, but it's not inconceivable that fashion may have changed the course of Canadian history.

It may be that the Indians failed to exterminate the first Frenchmen who set foot on Montreal's beautiful Mount Royal because they were awed by the elegance of the ensembles sent by the King of France—no awe, in fact, that they never once thought of reaching for their bow and arrow.

Thus did Jacques Cartier and his silk-and-velvet-clad men plant Louis XIV's standard on Canada without so much as a by-your-leave.

UNION LABEL

Fashion writers on hand today for the second National Collection of Union Label fashions, presented high atop Mount Royal, probably mused whether that early chapter of Canadian history should have been entitled: "French Fashion Conquers Montreal."

Since that page of Canadian history was written, however, Montreal has changed so much that Jacques Cartier himself wouldn't recognize it. Ville-Marie is no longer the name of a city, but that of a huge skyscraper which dwarfs Mount Royal itself. The French colony of yesterday is today the busy metropolis of a sovereign nation and quickly becoming the capital of national industry—and national elegance.

FALL AND WINTER

Today, for what may be the second time in its history (if the Jacques Cartier incident is included), Mount Royal will surrender to the world of fashion. This time, however, it will have a definite Canadian imprint—representing the fall and winter showpieces of the nation's designers from coast to coast. All will bear the label of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, symbol of fashion leadership, decent working conditions and sanitary manufacturing.

But to get back to history... It was in 1672 that Montreal's city fathers decided to acquire Mount Royal from the federal government. The following year, they commissioned Frederick Law Olmsted, the American landscape architect who had drawn the plan for Central Park, to make a blueprint for the creation of a vast all-season playground.

From that day on, the city's parks department has assumed entire responsibility for the maintenance and development of the mountain, guarding its preservation as jealously as a feline its kittens.

BUILT IN '30s

The Chalet, built at the outset of the '30s, has been hoisted to crowned heads as well as everyday tourists and its walls offer an interesting view of the chic that was in fashion in the days of Maisonneuve, Dollard des Ormeaux and the Sieur Cavalier de La Salle in murals signed by noted Canadian painters such as Marc-Aurèle Fortin, Edwin H. Holgate and Adrien Hebert.

The works of W. H. Taylor even show us all the opulence of France's regal cabinet in the days of Louis XIV, when the foundation of Ville-Marie was first laid.

Silver Threads Picnic Planned

The annual Silver Threads Centre picnic will be Wednesday, Aug. 15, at Mattick's Farm, not McMoran's as originally planned.

Buses leave the centre, 643 Broughton, at 11 a.m. and return from Cordova Bay at 4 p.m. Return fare is 50 cents a person. Picnickers are asked to bring box lunches but tea will be provided.

HISTORIC SCHOOL

Oldest existing teachers' college in the U.S., the Massachusetts state teachers' college opened at Framingham in 1820.

Mystic 'Tap' Revived

Renowned Mystic Springs of Cadboro Bay have come into their first commercial use in 50 years.

At the turn of the century spring water was piped from the heights overlooking the bay to the Giant Powder Co.'s explosive factory on Telegraph Bay.

When the plant was closed down and the operation moved by the new owners—Canadian Industries Ltd.—to James Island, the springs remained only a curiosity, used by residents to fill fishponds and water their gardens.

But the water flows today below the surface of the sandy, gravelly soil as it has for untold years, heading for the water at Gyo Park.

Cadboro Village has taken advantage of the flow a few feet beneath its foundations.

PERFORATED PIPE

A network of perforated pipes was laid under the site and leading to three cisterns which will be covered by steel lids in the parking area.

They are linked by other pipes and an electric pump which takes the water at a constant 40 degrees to a bank of refrigeration units below the Shop Easy store.

The cold water cools refrigeration coils and when the system is completed, the resulting warm water will be used for heating and in a permanent sprinkling system.

Engineering tests show a constant flow of 1,200 gallons an hour at one cistern, water which would otherwise run wasted through storm drains.

To ensure stability for the foundations, the building sits on footings five feet wide with reinforcing steel set four inches apart.

And where there are stores there is fire—burning tons of waste paper, for which Cadboro Village has installed a steel incinerator specially designed to minimize fly ash.

LOU HOLKER

One Task Was Easy

Naming of Cadboro Village was a simple matter, says Lou Holker, one of the developers.

"All the old-timers refer to this block as the village," according to Holker, who is a long-time resident of the "bay" area. "Besides, I didn't like the word 'plaza'."

New Cadboro Village Striking Local Effort

Cadboro Village is a shopping centre with some odd facets of character.

Apart from its stylized chalet-type roof and rustic natural stone facings it is probably the only group of stores having:

• A cedar shake roof from service station to professional offices.

• Foundations without piles, built on a bog over subterranean springs.

• Everlasting warm water for auxiliary heating and irrigation for planted areas.

• A direct link with Cadboro Bay's first community store and post office dating back at least 50 years.

LOCALLY DESIGNED

The attractive design is the most striking feature, and this, too, is a local effort.

Cadboro Bay Holdings Ltd. is the developing firm, in which the principal shareholders are Lou Holker—unofficial "mayor" of the village—Mrs. Garnons Williams and John Damgard.

Spokesman Holker, an avid community booster who has lived 45 years on the bay, said: "I didn't want a place that looked like a box. We designed it ourselves."

BLENDS WELL

Far from looking like a box, the distinctive gabled effect blends well with the informal residential district and adjoining avenue of tall, leafy trees.

The builders took advice from consulting engineer Eric Hoel, only on structural engineering aspects of the concrete block, reinforced concrete and trussed roof building.

SUPERMARKET

There are, besides the three professional offices and standard service station, a Shop-Easy store, a laundromat, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Blast Injuries Kill B.C. Boy

VANCOUVER (CP)—Robert Gillies, 14, of Richmond, has died of injuries suffered in a fishboat explosion two weeks ago at Rivers Inlet, 270 miles north of here. The boy was severely burned when he was caught below decks when the boat exploded.

DOMINION ROYAL SAFETY 800
LOW PROFILE TIRES

There were four houses and the landmark Cadboro Bay Grocery on the premises when the holding company began development two years ago.

DEMOLISHED

Three of the houses were moved to other sites, one was demolished and the old brick store taken down. Its post office has since relocated in a shop across Cadboro Bay Road.

The direct link with the past is Mrs. Williams, daughter of the late Frank V. Hobbs, bearded Saanich patriarch and local developer, who took over the original store in 1908. He died in April, 1959, aged 96.

POSTMISTRESS

Mrs. Williams herself was a community figure, having for years been postmistress—a familiar sight bringing mail sacks from Victoria in the village's first brass-band Model T.

The centre is accessible from three streets, Cadboro Bay Road, Sinclair and Penrhyn, covering about one third of a block virtually next door to seaside Gyo Park.

Its 50-car parking area in front is screened by a cut rock planted area which is extended along the south side below second storey offices. Three steel standards support high luminaire-type floodlights for after-dark shoppers.

All Tickets Gone For Naval Cruises

On the eve of three days of Canadian navy salute to Victoria's 100th birthday, 1,000 enthusiastic Victoria youngsters last night had taken up all tickets for four two-hour cruises to Juan de Fuca Strait aboard navy ships.

Four hundred children taking part in the Sailors-for-a-Day program will board destroyer escorts at the dockyard at 9:15 a.m. today, tomorrow and Saturday and at 1:15 p.m. tomorrow.

If there is heavy fog, or visibility on the strait is otherwise poor at the time scheduled for any cruise, there will be no cruise, but the youngsters will go aboard and tour the destroyer-escorts and will tour fleet support facilities ashore.

A parade, starting at 2 p.m., including bands, floats and naval contingents will get the three-day celebrations under way today.

Variations of today's program tomorrow and Saturday will include go-carting by sailors both days and, Saturday, a simulated air-sea anti-submarine exercise in the waters off Beacon Hill Park during the day and, at night, RCN ships illuminated off the park and an exhibit of fleet fireworks.

Today's Naval Events

All events are at Beacon Hill Park unless otherwise specified.

Oak Bay Closes Old Boat Ramp

The boat launching ramp at Oak Bay boathouse, long a source of traffic problems caused by boat trailers parked on Beach Drive, will be closed to everyday use starting Friday.

Reeve George Murdoch announced the closure yesterday. He said use of the ramp in future would be permitted only in an emergency.

Alternative boat launching facilities will be provided by the new double ramp at nearby Cattle Point which also has a single ramp for small boats.

The Turkey Head breakwater was built by the federal government two years ago at a cost of $500,000 to provide protection for boats launching from the Beach Drive ramp, and for boats mooring in the bay and at the wharves.

Fishermen using small boats also relied on the breakwater for rough weather protection as they fished on the lee side of the breakwater.

Reeve Murdoch said the project is part of a continuing program aimed at providing more access to the water in Oak Bay for boatmen whose numbers are "growing by leaps and bounds."

Quartet Brilliant

A capacity audience at Victoria College auditorium was held captive for two hours last night by the brilliant performance of the famous Juillard String Quartet. The program offered Beethoven's quartet, Opus 130, and Bela Bartok's fifth quartet.

Particularly impressive were the adagio and the cavatina in the Beethoven work and the andante and adagio molto from the Bartok. The quartet of Robert Mann, Isidore Cohen, Claus Adam and Raphael Hillier was recalled repeatedly at the close.

Logger Dies As Fire Hits Impaled Car

LADYSMITH—Body of a Vancouver Island logger burned to death in a car accident late Tuesday was viewed by a coroner's jury last night before an inquest into the mishap was adjourned to Tuesday.

Police said Walter Edward Howe, about 25, whose parents live in Port Arthur, Ont., died when his car went out of control and impaled itself on a guard rail of the Diamond Bridge, about half a mile south of here.

The short pedestrian guard rail was driven about three feet into the front of the car, police said. This burst the gas tank and a spark set the car on fire.

Police believe the driver was knocked unconscious by the impact of the crash. His body was not removed until the flames were extinguished. Reports said Howe's car passed two other vehicles, then swung back to its own side of the road—but went back too far.

The guard rail had to be cut by torch to free the car.

Gas Stations Vote Yes In Saanich

Saanich service station and garage operators yesterday voted to retain existing hours of operation.

In a secret ballot at the municipal hall, 26 voted "yes" and 11 "no" to a measure which permits them to set their own hours.

Those who were open 24 hours a day now can do so without contravening a provincial 6 p.m. daily closing bylaw. The secret ballot was a legal loophole in the law.

Mounties Arrive to Circus Surprise

The 60 members of the RCMP mounted ride arrived in Victoria last night for their eight performances at Royal Athletic Park Aug. 11 to 18.

On arrival at the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway station, Inspector J. G. C. Downey, in charge of the ride, said it was news to him that the ride is to share a program with a circus in Victoria.

"It will be a new venture for us," he said.

The Mountie troupe's 35 horses were to arrive early today—the extra four men are a bandleader, a riding master, a blacksmith and Insp. Downey.

Insp. Downey said the ride has been on the road since June 30 on what is known as the Prairie fair circuit.

It has ridden at the Red River Exhibition in Winnipeg, the Brandon, Man., provincial fair, the Calgary Stampede, the Edmonton Exhibition, the Saskatoon Exhibition and the Regina Exhibition. The troupe left Regina last Saturday.

Following the engagement in Victoria, the ride travels to the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver, the Seattle World's Fair, the Los Angeles County Fair in Fresno, Calif., Portland, Ore., and San Francisco.

That Tube on Beach No Toy—Call Navy

If you find a 15-inch aluminum tube washed ashore on a beach Saturday following the BCN anti-submarine exercise, don't touch it—call the police or navy.

The object may be a live "smoke bomb" which has a trigger mechanism on the outside and could be dangerous, said a navy spokesman who issued the warning as a precautionary measure.

The "bombs" are cylindrical, about four inches in diameter and have the wording "yellow smoke" printed in yellow paint along the side.

Nazi Chief Found

LONDON (Reuters)—American Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell was arrested in a newspaper office here late Wednesday night after evading a ban on his entry into Britain.

Scotland Yard announced that today he would be deported by air to the United States, leaving London about 11 a.m.

British and Irish police had searched unsuccessfully for several days for the 44-year-old American.

Rockwell entered Britain quietly a week ago from Ireland to address a rally of British Fascists in the rolling Cotswold Hills southwest of here.

The ban on Rockwell's entry, which he managed to evade, was issued by the British home office in the wake of a minor upsurge of extreme right-wing activity in Britain.

U.K. Jews Plead With Mac

LONDON (Reuters)—About 50 members of six London Jewish youth organizations picketed Admiralty House, Prime Minister Macmillan's London residence, Wednesday night as a protest against Fascist groups in Britain.

They handed in a letter addressed to Macmillan which said "the whole country pleads with you to use the powers that have been bestowed on you by the people to stamp out fascism it once again leads the world to death and destruction."

One of the organizers, Sammy Fine, a 24-year-old commercial artist, told reporters: "Young Jewish people here in Britain do not fear anything like gas chambers. But they do fear that their mothers or their sisters may not be able to walk alone safely in the streets unless something is done now."

Turbo-Props Obsolete?

LONDON (Reuters)—British Overseas Airways Corporation announced Wednesday that its fleet of 14 Britannia 102 airliners has been offered for sale as part of a program to replace it with jet aircraft.

Vain Call for Frank Ma's Final Thought

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—Elizabeth Ann (Ma) Duncan and the two killers she hired to murder her son's pregnant Canadian-born wife died Wednesday in San Quentin Prison's gas chamber.

The 38-year-old matron who plotted the 1956 slaying to keep her youngest son for herself, was executed first — shortly after 10 a.m. PDT.

Lula Moy, 23, and Augustine Baldonado, 28, who were paid $300 for killing Olga Duncan, 28, a nurse from Dauphin, Man, died together in the afternoon, shortly after 1 p.m. PDT. Ma Duncan, her life tightly closed to conceal the absence of her false teeth, entered the gas chamber with trembling steps and died quietly without once turning her head to look at the 57 witnesses.

In contrast, Baldonado and Moy were, in animated conversation when their pellets were dropped. Baldonado entered smiling. He talked and waved to his half-brother, Daniel Ledesma, 35, of Port Huron, and his brother-in-law Lawrence Roman.

Baldonado's final words were "It's all right."

APPEALS LOST
In the previous 75 minutes, they had lost two appeals to federal judges in San Francisco to stay their deaths.

Mrs. Duncan, her grey hair drawn into a bun, died silently, but her last words to the warden were a vain request to see her beloved son, Frank, and a denial that she caused Olga's murder.

Shortly before entering the chamber, Ma Duncan received final communion from Rev. John Mullins, Roman Catholic prison chaplain.

Warden Fred R. Dickson said her last words to him were: "I am innocent — where's Frank?"

Final Kiss —Marilyn Was Gone

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Fabled Marilyn Monroe, for a decade the movies' sex symbol, was escorted Wednesday after a final kiss from ex-husband Joe DiMaggio.

The former star slinger for the New York Yankees, second of the famed blonde's three husbands, was the last mourner to leave the crypt before her coffin was sealed.

THREE LOVES
He bent over, kissed her on the forehead, murmured "I love you" three times, then strode out as an attendant closed the carved bronze coffin and slid it into a pink marble wall at Westwood Memorial Park's Corridor of Memories.

DiMaggio, who spent 12 hours at the funeral home Tuesday and 3½ hours there before the funeral Wednesday, was in tears as he left the chapel after a simple service for a select group of friends.

VERY MUCH
"He was alone with her many times," said a funeral home source. "He was a man obviously bereaved, a man still very much in love with her."

Friends have said that DiMaggio was the No. 1 man in Miss Monroe's life. They remained friends after their divorce and were often together in the weeks before her death last Saturday of an overdose of drugs.

POLICE WALL
A crowd of 1,000 flocked to the park in West Los Angeles, just a mile from 20th Century-Fox studio where Marilyn soared to fame. But more than 100 policemen kept them outside the park's surrounding wall.

The list of about 30 invited persons was prepared by DiMaggio. Miss Monroe's business manager and her half sister, they explained that if they invited one star, they would have to invite many, and to have a big crowd would mean abandoning the simple rites they felt Miss Monroe would have wanted.

HOW FEARFULLY
Broadway drama coach Lee Strasberg, Marilyn's friend and mentor, delivered the eulogy, calling her a legendary figure.

The brief non-denominational service was conducted by a Lutheran minister, Rev. A. J. Soidan of the Village Church of Westwood. He read the 23rd Psalm and quoted from the Book of Amos: "How fearfully and wonderfully she was made by the Creator."

Argentina War Chief Resigns

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentina's war secretary resigned Wednesday night after an open rebellion of army chiefs threatened new difficulties for the shaky government of President Jose Maria Galdos.

Gen. Juan Bautista Luna told a group of high army officers his resignation from his dual post of secretary and army commander-in-chief was the only way to resolve the situation.

DAY OF UPHEAVAL
The resignation climaxed a day of military upheaval that began when one ranking army leader, Maj. Gen. Federico Toranzo Montero, set up a rebel command post in northern Argentina and called on Luna to quit.

Luna branded Toranzo Montero an outlaw but within a few hours four generals had rallied to the rebel's side.

ONE-MAN RULE
The rebel leaders accused Luna, a crusty career soldier, of wielding one-man rule over the army.

The upheaval in the military hierarchy caused consternation in the Galdos government, placed in power by the army last March after a bloody coup that ousted President Arturo Frondizi, still in custody on an island in the River Plate.

MILITARY FEARFUL
That coup followed victories at the polls by supporters of exiled former dictator Juan Peron, causing fears among military leaders that a Peronist resurgence was at hand.

Among the confused military manoeuvres, a score of army officers were arrested.

Strad Stolen

TRECHTINGHAUSEN, West Germany (AP)—A Stradivarius violin has been stolen from its exhibition glass case in a castle on the Rhine, police said Wednesday.

Caroline Sports Baby Bikini For Holiday in Italian Heat

RAVELLO, Italy (AP)—Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy started her two-week vacation here by resting in her shady villa Wednesday, but four-year-old daughter Caroline rushed off to the beach in a flowered, two-piece baby swimsuit.

It is Caroline's first trip abroad.

Mrs. Kennedy, wife of the president of the United States, and Caroline arrived in this picturesque cliff-top village in sweltering 86-degree heat after a two-stage plane flight from New York and a breathtaking 25-mile drive over a tortuous coastal highway with sheer drops of 1,000 feet to the sea.

Caroline, with two little cousins and an Irish nurse, set out for the beach on the azure waters of the Mediterranean less than two hours after arriving.

The cousins are Anne Katherine Radziwill, 3, and Anthony, 2, children of Mrs. Kennedy's sister Princess Lee Radziwill of London. The Princess and her husband, Prince Stanislas, are the hosts of Mrs. Kennedy and Caroline.

Lumber Feud Deepens

WASHINGTON (CP)—A spokesman for the U.S. lumber industry says the industry may be forced to engage in a general anti-Canada campaign if Canada does not agree to restrict lumber exports to the U.S. market voluntarily.

Henry Bahr, vice-president of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, made the statement Wednesday when asked to comment on a call by the Canadian Lumbermen's Association for a cooling-off period in the Canada-U.S. lumber dispute.

MAY BE FORCED

"For years," Bahr said, "we have tried to maintain peaceful relations with the Canadian lumber industry, but if we get no co-operation here we may be forced to use every political pressure possible to defeat U.S. policies that may be favorable to Canada."

NO EVIDENCE

The Canadian association said Wednesday there is no need and no evidence to justify restrictions on exports of Canadian softwoods to the United States.

"If the Canadian lumbermen want a cooling-off period in order to give them more time to increase their exports to the United States, then of course we won't agree," Bahr said.

CAN UNDERSELL

"The Canadian association is well aware that through Canadian dollar exchange manipulation Canada is able to undersell U.S. softwoods in the U.S. market. We are faced with increased unemployment. All we are asking is for a fair settlement. We have offered to give Canada 10 per cent of the U.S. market—without tariffs—providing U.S. rates go up to 10 per cent ad valorem on additional quantities shipped."

B.C. Bonds Out Today

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier Bennett will announce a new bond issue—possibly parity bonds—at a provincial government luncheon here today. The bond issue will refund the $33,616,000 in Pacific Great Eastern parity bonds which mature Sept. 15.

Jamaicans Surround Margaret

MONTEGO BAY (Reuters)—More than 5,000 excited Jamaicans hemmed in Princess Margaret's car when she arrived in this resort town Wednesday with her husband, the Earl of Snowdon.

Police had to clear a way through cheering throngs as the Royal couple were driven to the hotel where they will spend today before returning to London Friday.

The princess, who came here to preside at independence ceremonies on behalf of Queen Elizabeth, wore a court-seeked mustard-colored dress with a white tulle skirt for the trial trip here from Kingston, the capital.

She Knew She'd Be On Top—or Dead

VANCOUVER (CP)—Through the gray light of dawn Mrs. Esther Kafer could see the peak of Mount Waddington rising 13,090 feet into the sky.

"I knew before the day was over I'd be on top—or dead," she said.

In 1958 she lost four close friends who died in an attempt to scale British Columbia's highest mountain. For days before the climb she was frightened.

BRIEF UNMENTIONED
Two federal officials filed with Elliott a friend — of-the-court brief asking that the injunction be denied. The judge made no reference to the brief.

But Mayor Asa D. Kelley Jr. said "it is no more than we expected."

"This is an affront to those of us in the south who are prepared to stand fast for law and order."

ish. But I've been climbing mountains for almost nine years."

She said after breakfast of porridge, biscuits, honey and tea the four started, she and Paul Binkert of Vancouver.

TOKYO (AP)—Red China has offered Nationalist Chinese pilots on Formosa $20,000 — to deliver an American U-2 plane to the mainland.

The Communists have repeatedly claimed the United States has equipped President Chiang Kai-shek's air force with the spy planes but there has never been any confirmation.

She said that ever since Elfreda Pigou and Joan Stirling of North Vancouver died in an attempt to climb the mountain "I had a fear—and yet a desire—to climb this mountain."

Mass Hypnotism No Miracle for Students

Four at Summer School

CALGARY (CP)—Seven high school students who took part in a mass hypnotism session to prepare them for final exams have learned it takes more than a wave of the hand to ensure good marks.

With exam results now released, the average highest mark achieved by the students is 67 per cent. They were hypnotized by members of the Calgary Hypnotic Society and were given suggestions that they would relax and recall all they learned at school.

They weren't promised a miracle and some came to pass. Robert Warren, superintendent of public schools here, said the results support his opinion that those who sought hypnotism were insecure about their examination prospects.

"The hypnotists were a courageous lot because their pitch was attractive to those already in line for discouragement," he said. "They expected to relax a lot of the students but those who sought help were probably the students who had failed to

The highest average mark of 67 per cent was scored by a grade 12 student who wants to be a hypnotist again.

"It helped me I think," the student said. "I felt a lot calmer. I sat down at each exam without having to look at the clock. I'll try it again to relax my nerves and help me quit smoking."

The hypnotists told the students that if they had not studied the trance would not help.

The students were required to have the consent of their parents before they could undergo the treatment.

A 17-year-old girl who was put in a trance said hypnotism did not help her. She failed one of the two grade 12 examinations she wrote.

"I actually felt drowsy when I went to study and I couldn't concentrate."

Of the seven who participated, four are attending summer school to improve their grades and obtain passing marks in subjects failed. One boy who is studying this summer hopes to raise his marks by 10 or 15 per cent. His average was 64 per cent, six per cent lower than at Easter.

Besides M. Warren and Alberta Health Minister J. Duval-Roux, the hypnotism session was also criticized by doctors and psychiatrists.

"Hypnotism will not help anyone to do anything he is not capable of," said one doctor.

Little League Championship Decided by Two Home Runs

By JIM TANG

Victoria's National Little League all-stars gave it quite a try last night but there is no answer in baseball, even in Little League, for the home run.

Husky Larry Lenarduzzi did with his bat what he started out to do on the mound, smashing out two three-run homers as the East Trail all-stars defeated the defending champions, 7-4, to earn the right to represent British Columbia in the sectional play-downs which get underway tonight at Little League Park.

FIRST PITCHES

Lenarduzzi, a right-handed pitcher who swings from the first-base side of the plate, hit the first pitch to him in the third inning over the left-field wall after a single by Ernie Deadmarsh and a base on balls to Lorne Buns. And it was the first pitch that was lined over the fence in left-center field when Lenarduzzi again came up with two runners on in the sixth inning. Centre-fielder Bob Wallace had opened the sixth with a line-drive home run which

Thibeault, in trouble often as he issued seven bases on balls, pitched bravely but just couldn't keep Lenarduzzi, who finished the game at first base, in check.

A homesick bunch of youngsters when they arrived here after four postponements of the B.C. final, the East Trail club won't mind the extra stay. It's two weeks ago today since they left home, they've won seven games without losing—most of them in hair-raising fashion—and now they get another chance at Little League's big prize. That's the trip to Williamsport, Penn., for the Little League world series, and they need four more wins to make it. They'll watch tonight at Little League park as the Hawaiian champions from Kailua and the Alaskan tit-holders from Port Richards meet in a quarter-final sectional game at 6:30. The winners of that game meet East Trail in the semi-final at 6:30 tomorrow, after the first sectional between Oregon's Ontario Elks and Bellevue, Washington champions at 2:30.

Los Angeles Angels just won't take no for an answer. A surprising American League contender—leaders on July 4, the Angels went into the slump almost everyone but themselves had been predicting and appeared on their way down to the second division which had been predicted for them.

But the Angels are proving remarkably resilient. They have come bouncing back, and yesterday they spurted into second place and cut the New York Yankees' lead to four and a half games.

A doubleheader win over Chicago White Sox, who had been showing some late signs of life—recently, saw the Angels get pitching when they needed it in the 5-1 first game and some timely hitting in the 7-5 second game.

Pentecost's Ted Bowdfield got late help from Jack Spring in the 11th to boost his record to 7-5. A bizarre eighth-inning produced four runs which started with an error and saw the bags filled to get the lead runner on sacrifice bunts. Singles by Lee Thomas and Felix Torres and another error produced the runs.

Meanwhile the Yankees split a doubleheader with Baltimore Orioles, winning, 3-2, and losing, 3-4, as Billy Hoit turned in a sparkling bit of relief pitching.

Minnesota Twins dropped out of the runner-up spot when Ed Charles stole home in the ninth inning to break a 3-3 tie.

Los Angeles Dodgers tacked a full game on their Philadelphia lead by beating Philadelphia, 3-1, although held to four hits.

Tuesday at Shawigan Lake, Californians drew with the hosts while Stragglers were playing to a draw with a Victoria Association side at Windsor Park.

One game is scheduled today, the University Occasionals from Vancouver playing the Californians at Beacon Hill Park at 1 p.m.

Divers Overcome Underwater Rule

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—The conservation officers who had been fishing unsuccessfully all day didn't believe the man who surfaced near them with a big bass and said he had caught the fish underwater with a worm-baited hook.

But when a second skin diver came to the surface of the French River with an underwater camera, they were even more amazed.

George Jones of Kitchener, told conservationists Edward Johnson and Howard Patch, that his friend Glen Guthrie of Kitchener, had caught the bass with a three-foot length of fishing line and a worm-baited hook.

What's more, Jones had taken pictures of the underwater catch.

The divers also said fishing regulations do not stipulate bass angling must be done from the surface and the officers admitted that technically the pair were right.

Recommends No 1962 Duck Season

WASHINGTON (AP)—The president of the National Audubon Society urged Wednesday night that the United States government ban hunting of ducks this year.

Carl W. Buchheiser told the National Water Fowl Advisory Committee in a closed session that this is a critical year, because duck numbers have been reduced by several years of drought in the principal nesting areas.

His position clashed with the recommendation of the National Flyway Council for easing of present duck hunting restrictions.

Golfers who heed the advice to "hit down" on iron shots may wind up "nailing" the ball instead, with a chopping downswing. This error all starts with the backswing, in which the weight never leaves the left foot (note heel on ground).

One good way to avoid "nailing" is to keep in mind that club-head loft will get the ball into the air without additional effort on the golfer's part.

Get more weight to the left of the backswing, then bring the club-head back to the ball so it's low to the ground just before impact.

CASPER, Wyo.—Duncan All-Stars, jumping on two pitchers for 15 hits, pounded Ketchikan, Alaska, 18-7, here yesterday to move into the second round of the Northwest Regional Babe Ruth baseball tournament.

Leading the way was Doug McKinley, who drove in six runs, three on a home run in the second inning that brought his club from behind a 2-0 deficit.

Taking advantage of 13 bases on balls, the Duncan club struck for six more runs in the third inning, scored one in the fourth, and added three more in the fifth.

Other teams to advance were Madison of Portland, which downed Cheyenne, Wyo., 9-8, and Wallace, Idaho, which beat Great Falls, Mont., 6-4.

Alouettes Given Best Chance to Dethrone Ti-Cats

TORONTO (CP)—The Eastern Football Conference heads into another season tonight—possibly its most glittering year since Montreal Alouettes ruled supreme for three straight seasons in 1954-55-56.

Defending champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats, with only a few changes in last year's squad, rate as solid favorites in spite of a dismal pre-season exhibition record of three losses. It has not hurt the other clubs—Alouettes, Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders—who any false hopes the Tics will be easy to knock off.

Alouettes could be the team to do it with the addition of a highly-published rookie quarterback, Sandy Stephens, to solve their quarterback problem. In 1961 they had a great defensive club in the league but it was not enough to overcome their inability to move the ball.

Argonauts and Rough Riders, with problems on both offence and defence are not considered as strong contenders. But Argos' free-wheeling, quick striking passing attack and the Rough Riders' well-balanced offence, make both clubs dangerous.

Except for the Alouettes' Perry Moss, who thinks his three-year rebuilding job now is ready to pay off, none of the coaches will make any predictions as to where their clubs will finish in their 14-game schedule.

Tiger-Cats, first-place finishers in 1961 with a 10-4 record, and Rough Riders open the schedule tonight in Ottawa. Argonauts and Alouettes meet in Toronto Friday night in their opener.

Hamilton, which lost to Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a thrilling overtime Grey Cup final last season, again will have all-star quarterback Bernie Falter directing its attack. Jim Trimble, coach of the Tiger-Cats, no longer is worried about the club's offensive power now that veteran and Paul Dekker has abandoned his retirement plans and pass-catching ace Hal Patterson appears fully recovered from knee and shoulder injuries in 1961.

Dekker and rookie Dave Viti from Boston University will team up as the offensive ends, with Patterson shifting to the flanker spot where he'll replace Gerry McDougall, who was traded to Argos for fullback Bobby Kuntz. Larry Hickman and Kuntz will share the fullback job and a halfback will be Garney Henley, a defensive specialist last year, and the veteran Ralph Goldston.

Ottawa, who finished in second place last season with eight wins and six losses, has been revamped slightly by coach Frank Clark—who says he has "a better club than last year."

Clark has about seven newcomers who he thinks will be a big help after they pick up some experience.

They are defensive end Billy Joe Booth from Louisiana State and Bill Semato from B.C. Lions, defensive halfback Gene Gaines from Montreal, line-backer Bob Isaac from Wyoming, Norb Roy of Notre Dame, Mike McDougall of Western Michigan and Billard Fleming of Marshall College.

Import Ron Lancaster and homebrew Russ Jackson will split the quarterback job again and back to lead the ground attack are Dave Thelin and Ron Stewart. Clark apparently has relented on his intention play Stewart in the speedy halfback position and commuting while studying for his law degree in Toronto.

Stephens will guide an attack that will feature his roll-out passing and broken-field running and the plugging of twin fullbacks George Dixon and Don Clark. A bit also is expected from halfback Dick Cohen, hampered by injuries last season after a good rookie year in 1960.

Centre Joe Stracina has been obtained from Ottawa and another newcomer is offensive tackle Roger Kramer. The defensive line of ends Don Pasquetti and Bill Ray, Loukas, tackle Bobbi Jack Oliver and Ted Elsie and middle guard guard Ed Nickla is intact.

Veteran quarterback Tobin Rote is expected to be Argos' main weapon again. Coach Lou Agass had hoped to inject more running into Argos' offence this year but the decision to drop Cookie Gilchrist, the controversial fullback, may change those plans. McDougall likely will take over Gilchrist's spot and share the running lead with Dick Shatto. Dave Mann and Lynn Batters are newcomers Joe Harwood from the University of Arizona will be used on offence and as two of Rote's main pass receivers.

Young Driver 'Negligent' In Car Death

By ED COUGROVE

A coroner's jury probing the death of Mrs. Bertha Burton, 3218 Rutledge, fatally injured in a two-car crash Sunday, yesterday cited the negligence of a 20-year-old motorist as the cause of the accident.

The day-long probe sparked a strong protest from lawyer J. E. Gatehouse, counsel for Richard Lascelle, 551 Niagara, driver of one of the cars. Mrs. Burton was in the other car.

Mr. Gatehouse objected several times to newly-appointed assistant coroner Edmond J. de St. Jorre's decision to call Lascelle as a witness.

The lawyer said the purpose of the inquest was "to determine the cause and reason for death."

He said his client was presently charged with two indictable offences, "with a possibility of a further offence being charged."

"It is obvious that cause of death was the accident... no further purpose is served to hear Lascelle except to fix liability," he said.

Protection Possible

His objection was overruled by Mr. de St. Jorre, who said the "coroner's position in this matter is set out clearly in the Coroners' Act."

He said Lascelle could invoke protection of the B.C. and Canada Evidence Act to protect himself in the event of further court action.

Mr. Gatehouse renewed his objections following a noon adjournment and was granted a further 15-minute adjournment to "instruct" his client.

When the hearing resumed, Mr. de St. Jorre told the jury his duties as a coroner included finding out "who,

how, when and where" a person met death, and to "affix blame in murder or manslaughter."

Lascelle testified he had swerved his car to avoid a dog while rounding the curve on Dallas Road at Clover Point. He said when he looked ahead, his car was almost on top of the other car.

He said he was driving at "between 15 and 20 miles an hour" and his car was in second gear. A police officer told the inquiry he examined the car and found this to be a fact.

A total of 10 witnesses gave evidence.

Rupture of Spleen

Dr. Garth Walters, St. Joseph's Hospital pathologist, testified Mrs. Burton died as a result of a rupture of the spleen. He said internal hemorrhage and multiple rib fractures were contributing causes.

Dr. Colin Campin, resident on duty in the emergency ward when Mrs. Burton was brought in Sunday night, said her condition at that time "seemed good."

"She had plenty of fight left in her," he said.

But after being admitted to the ward, her condition rapidly deteriorated. Blood trans-fusions, artificial respiration and injections of adrenalin failed to revive her.

"We didn't know what was happening... we suspected internal hemorrhage," said the doctor.

Mrs. Burton was a passenger in a car driven by her niece, Mrs. Helen Hamel of Canora, Sask. With other members of the family, they were on a sightseeing drive along Dallas Road when their car was rammed head-on by the Lascelle car.

Other witnesses testified to the speed of both cars and events following the crash.

New Charge Likely

Earlier, Lascelle appeared briefly in city police court before Magistrate William Ostler on a charge of impaired driving.

City prosecutor Angus Smith agreed to a one-day remand so Lascelle could appear at the inquest. At the same time the prosecutor indicated a further charge would be laid against Lascelle today.

The inquest jury deliberated for half an hour before returning a verdict.

Mr. Gatehouse said in an interview later he maintained his objections to calling his client to the stand.

Not Criminal Court

He termed the proceeding "unusual" and said the questioning went "very far afield of the matter."

Mr. de St. Jorre warned the jury they were "not sitting as a criminal court" and told them they must find the cause of death and "whether the death was murder or manslaughter."

"There is no suggestion of murder," said the coroner.

He said a verdict of manslaughter must be borne out by evidence of a high degree of recklessness.

"It is not our responsibility to accuse anyone... but if the jury is of the opinion (the deceased) did come to her death by manslaughter, then it is your duty to say so."

He cited sections of the Motor Vehicles Act covering reckless driving and driving without due care and attention and said "there was no evidence of any illegal driving by Mrs. Hamel."

At the request of Mr. Gatehouse, the coroner re-directed the jury on points of Lascelle's evidence.

"If the jury believes Lascelle, it must bring in a verdict absolving him (for acting in an emergency situation)... but if you do believe there was a dog there, you must also bear in mind there was another vehicle there," said the coroner.

Party to Thank Pageant Cast

The Victoria centennial committee is giving the 1,000 active participants in the centennial pageant a mammoth party in Royal Athletic Park Sunday in appreciation of their weeks of preparation and stalwart performances in the face of bad weather and postponements.

The party begins at 2:30 p.m. Only those who participated in the pageant are invited.

Teachers Take Study 'Holiday'

Six physics and general science teachers from southern Vancouver Island high schools are taking a two-week busman's holiday in the physics laboratories of Royal Roads United Services College.

But it's a free-and-easy course. If you can call it a course, with no fees, no academic credits for the teacher-students and almost no curriculum. The teachers spend a couple of hours each morning hearing lectures from Royal Roads instructors and the rest of the day following their own inclinations in the physics labs.

MOST VALUABLE
The Royal Roads physics staff decided earlier this year to offer the two-week session to high school teachers and let the teachers decide, for the most part, what they felt it would be most valuable for them to do.

The teachers feel the chance to use Royal Roads equipment and to talk with staff members—who are as numerous as they are—in helping them increase their knowledge and keep up with recent developments.

WIDE RANGE
Different teachers are working in different branches of physics. They are dealing with topics ranging from the discharge of electricity through gases, through electrical properties of air.

Lectures deal with such topics as nuclear physics and radio waves in the cosmos.

Dr. John Duffus of the Royal Roads staff is in charge of the sessions.

ALSO ATTENDING
High school teachers attending them are C. J. G. Lonsdale, Cottonwood Road, Chemainus; Middleton Lambert, Ladysmith; and from Victoria, N. K. Preston, 3321 Woodburn; W. A. Tangye, 954 Bank; and Frederick Lawson, 561 Baxter. Walter Thumm of Victoria University also is attending sessions.

Motorcade Report

No province in Canada—including British Columbia—has cornered the market on beautiful scenery, Ron Gadsby, the official B.C. member of the Trans-Canada Highway Motorcade, reported yesterday from Halifax.

He said tour members were undeterred by at least 200 miles of dusty road construction on the first leg of the 4,000-mile journey and an official boycott of the Trans-Canada four by officials of Newfoundland's capital city, St. John's.

"In case British Columbians get carried away with the thought that our province has everything," said

Mr. Gadsby, "let them be assured Newfoundland has everything we have on an only slightly less spectacular scale."

He said the Maritime province had scenery to match the Fraser Valley, the Cariboo and the Forbidden Plateau along the 700 miles of highway between St. John's and Port au Basque.

At Gander, Mayor Jack Robertson said: "After three centuries of slumber we are coming alive in a hurry." Cornerbrook Mayor Allison Bugden also gave the tour a warm welcome.

The tour boarded a ferry at Port au Basque after a near-accident as one of the cars in the motorcade

Fish Scientists Find Wealth In Pacific Hunt

A wealth of salmon was caught by four Fisheries Research of Canada vessels recently in Pacific waters, but only 2,000 of the 19,500 were kept.

The fish were caught between early April and late July by Japanese long-line gear, "mostly in waters off the Gulf of Alaska," Dr. Feris Neave of the Nanaimo fisheries station said yesterday.

All species of Pacific salmon including steelhead, were taken and tagged in a special survey.

ALASKA, OREGON
So far more than 300 tags have been turned in to the biological station from points as far north as Alaska and as far south as Oregon.

The long-line method of trolling was supervised by a Japanese expert aboard each of the chartered "seine-type" craft.

"On the average, the line would stretch two miles behind the boat, with at least 1,000 hooks dropping from it," Dr. Neave said.

WILL BEYOND
As times the trollers were operated as far as 1,000 miles from the B.C. coast—"well beyond the weathership at Station Papa."

The survey was made to determine what the distribution of salmon in Pacific waters may be in the future, he added.

"All our vessels ran into heavy weather, but everything ran smoothly—these are heavy weather boats, you know—they handled wonderfully."

APPEAL MADE
Chief scientists on the survey were J. I. Manzer and R. J. LeBrasseur, also of the Nanaimo fisheries station.

Dr. Neave appealed to all commercial or sports fishermen who find tags on salmon they catch to send them to the Nanaimo station.

TO HELP
"This is a must, that we receive these tags to help us with our research," he said.

Dr. Neave didn't go on the survey but co-ordinated operations daily by radio-telephone.

Army Speaker
Maj. George Wright, of the Salvation Army's Harbor Light, will speak at a meeting of the Oak Bay Kiwanis Club in Oak Bay Beach Hotel at 6:15 p.m. today.

Maritimes Bloom

simultaneously blew two tubelens tires on the rough roads. The highway trip resumed at North Sydney, N.S.

On the green headland which contains some of the major coal producers in eastern Canada there is no evidence of the spectre of economic disaster through impending closure.

The trip to Halifax included stops at Baddeck to view the Alexander Graham Bell museum, and the beautiful city of Truro once again underlined that this country should be seen by every Canadian, he said.

The port of gold still lies, for Mr. Gadsby, anyway, at the end of the 4,000-mile journey when the motorcade

The club made the following appointments to its executive—Isaac Vaage, vocational guidance; Major Bill Carey of the Salvation Army, churches committee; Dawson Gordon, attendance and membership, assisted by Fred Shepherd; Fred Armstrong, treasurer, and George Topp, public relations and deer hides project.

But as of yesterday, the attorney-general's department had heard of no last case in the making.

NO REQUEST
George Chatterton, Tory MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, said no one has formally asked him to press in Ottawa for more leniency in bingo control regulations.

"I'm quite willing to take up the cudgel for any service club or charitable organization which relies on bingo to finance worthy purposes," he said.

Those who were open 24 hours a day now can do so without contravening a provincial 6 p.m. daily closing bylaw. The secret ballot was a legal loophole in the law.

Reducers must be installed to protect plumbing in these houses before the new pump can be placed in permanent operation.

Wet weather has reduced the demand on the existing system to the point where the old pumps can take care of it. It is expected the new system will be in service next week.

Near Ladysmith

Impaled Car Burns Island Logger Dies

LADYSMITH — Body of a Vancouver Island logger burned to death in a car accident late Tuesday was viewed by a coroner's jury last night before an inquest into the mishap was adjourned to Tuesday.

Police said Walter Edward Howe, about 25, whose parents live in Port Arthur, Ont., died when his car went out of control and impaled itself on a guard rail of the Diamond Bridge, about half a mile south of here.

GAS TANK BURST

The short pedestrian guard rail was driven about three feet into the front of the car, police said. This burst the gas tank and a spark set the car on fire.

Police believe the driver was knocked unconscious by the impact of the crash. His body was not removed until the flames were extinguished.

Reports said Howe's car passed two other vehicles, then swung back to its own side of the road—but went back too far.

The guard rail had to be cut by torch to free the car.

Nazi Chief Found

LONDON (Reuters)—American Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell was arrested in a newspaper office here late Wednesday night after evading a ban on his entry into Britain.

Scotland Yard announced early today he would be deported by air to the United States, leaving London about 11 a.m.

British and Irish police had searched unsuccessfully for several days for the 44-year-old American.

ADDITIONAL RALLY

Rockwell entered Britain quietly a week ago from Ireland to address a rally of British Fascists in the rolling Cotswold Hills southwest of here.

The ban on Rockwell's entry, which he managed to evade, was issued by the British home office in the wake of a minor upsurge of extreme right-wing activity in Britain.

U.K. Jews Plead With Mac

LONDON (Reuters)—About 50 members of six London Jewish youth organizations picketed Admiralty House, Prime Minister Macmillan's London residence, Wednesday night as a protest against Fascist groups in Britain.

They handed in a letter addressed to Macmillan which said "the whole country pleads with you to use the powers that have been bestowed on you by the people to stamp out fascism before it again leads the world to death and destruction."

One of the organizers, Sammy Fine, a 24-year-old commercial artist, told reporters:

"Young Jewish people here in Britain do not fear anything like gas chambers. But they do fear that their mothers or their sisters may not be able to walk alone safely in the streets unless something is done now."

Turbo-Props Obsolete?

Vain Call for Frank Ma's Final Thought

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—Elizabeth Ann (Ma) Duncan and the two killers she hired to murder her son's pregnant Canadian-born wife died Wednesday in San Quentin Prison's gas chamber.

The 56-year-old matron, who plotted the 1958 slaying to keep her youngest son for herself, was executed first—shortly after 10 a.m. PDT.

Luella Moya, 73, and Augustine Baldonado, 28, who were paid $360 for killing Olga Duncan, 38, a nurse from Dauphin, Man., died together in the afternoon, shortly after 1 p.m. PDT. Ma Duncan, her lips tightly closed to conceal the absence of her false teeth, entered the gas chamber with trembling steps and died quietly without once turning her head to look at the 57 witnesses.

In contrast, Baldonado and Moya were in animated conversation when their pellets were dropped. Baldonado entered smiling. He talked and waved to his half-brother, Daniel Ledesma, 35, of Port Huron, and his brother-in-law Lawrence Roman.

Baldonado's final words were "It's all right."

APPEALS LOST

In the previous 73 minutes, they had lost two appeals to federal judges in San Francisco to stay their deaths.

Mrs. Duncan, her grey hair drawn into a bun, died silently, but her last words to the warden were a vain request to see her beloved son, Frank, and a denial that she caused Olga's murder.

Shortly before entering the chamber, Ma Duncan received final communion from Rev. John Mullin, Roman Catholic prison chaplain.

Warden Fred R. Dickson said her last words to him were: "I am innocent—where's Frank?"

Final Kiss —Marilyn Was Gone

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Faded Marilyn Monroe, for a decade the movies' sex symbol, was entombed Wednesday after a final kiss from ex-husband Joe DiMaggio.

The former star slinger for the New York Yankees, second of the famed blonde's three husbands, was the last mourner to leave the crypt before her coffin was sealed.

THREE LOVES

He bent over, kissed her on the forehead, murmured "I love you" three times, then strode out as an attendant closed the carved bronze coffin and slid it into a pink marble well at Westwood Memorial Park's Corridor of Memories.

DiMaggio, who spent 12 hours at the funeral home Tuesday and 5½ hours there before the funeral Wednesday, was in tears as he left the chapel after a simple service for a select group of friends.

VERY MUCH

"He was alone with her many times," said a funeral home source. "He was a man obviously bereaved, a man still very much in love with her."

Friends have said that DiMaggio was the No. 1 man in Miss Monroe's life. They remained friends after their divorce and were often together in the weeks before her death last Saturday of an overdose of drugs.

POLICE WALL

A crowd of 1,000 flocked to the park in West Los Angeles, just a mile from 20th Century-Fox studio where Marilyn soared to fame. But more than 100 policemen kept them outside the park's surrounding wall.

The list of about 30 invited persons was prepared by DiMaggio. Miss Monroe's business manager and her half sister, they explained that if they invited one star, they would have to invite many, and to have a big crowd would mean abandoning the simple rites they felt Miss Monroe would have wanted.

HOW FEARFULLY

The brief non-denominational service was conducted by a Lutheran minister, Rev. A. J. Soldan of the Village Church of Westwood. He read the 23rd Psalm and quoted from the Book of Amos: "How fearfully and wonderfully she was made by the Creator."

Argentina War Chief Resigns

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentina's war secretary resigned Wednesday night after an open rebellion of army chiefs threatened new difficulties for the shaky government of President Jose Maria Guido.

Gen. Juan Bautista Loza told a group of high army officers his resignation from his dual post of secretary and army commander-in-chief was the only way to resolve the situation.

DAY OF UPHEAVAL

The resignation climaxed a day of military upheaval that began when one ranking army leader, Maj. Gen. Federico Tornazo Montero, set up a rebel command post in northern Argentina and called on Loza to quit.

Loza branded Tornazo Montero an outlaw but within a few hours four generals had rallied to the rebel's side.

ONE-MAN RULE

The rebel leaders accused Loza, a crusty career soldier, of winking one-man rule over the army.

The upheaval in the military hierarchy caused consternation in the Guido government, placed in power by the army last March after a bloodless coup that ousted President Arturo Frondisi, still in custody on an island in the River Plate.

MILITARY FEARS

That coup followed victories at the polls by supporters of exiled former dictator Juan Peron, causing fears among military leaders that a Peronist resurgence was at hand.

Among the confused military maneuvers, a score of army officers were arrested.

Strad Stolen

TRECHTINGHAUSEN, West Germany (AP)—A Stradivarius viola has been stolen from its exhibition glass case in a castle on the Rhine, police said Wednesday.

She had seen her handsome, 33-year-old lawyer son a few hours earlier, but he was not present for the execution.

After his mother's conviction, Frank married Elinor Chandler Duncan, now his wife and law partner.

Mass Hypnotism No Miracle for Students

CALGARY (CP)—Seven high school students who took part in a mass hypnotism session to prepare them for final exams have learned it takes more than a wave of the hand to ensure good marks.

With exam results now released, the average highest mark achieved by the students is 67 per cent. They were hypnotized by members of the Calgary Hypnotism Society and were given suggestions that they would relax and recall all they learned at school.

They weren't promised a miracle, and none came to pass.

Robert Warren, superintendent of public schools here, said the results support his opinion that those who sought hypnotism were insecure about their examination prospects.

"The hypnotists were a courageous lot because their pitch was attractive to those already in line for discouragement," he said. "They expected to relax a lot of the students but those who sought help were probably the students who had failed in work hard through the year."

The highest average mark of 67 per cent was scored by a Grade 12 student who wants to be hypnotized again.

"It helped me I think," the student said. "I felt a lot calmer. I sat down at each exam without having to look at the clock. I'll try it again to relax my nerves and help me quit smoking."

The hypnotists told the students that if they had not studied the trance would not help.

LUMBER REPRISALS THREATENED BY U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP)—A spokesman for the U.S. lumber industry says the industry may be forced to engage in a general anti-Canada campaign if Canada does not agree to restrict lumber exports to the U.S. market voluntarily.

Henry Bahr, vice-president of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, made the statement Wednesday when asked to comment on a call by the Canadian Lumbermen's Association for a cooling-off period in the Canada-U.S. lumber dispute.

MAY BE FORCED

"For years," Bahr said, "we have tried to maintain peaceful relations with the Canadian lumber industry, but if we get no co-operation here we may be forced to use every political pressure possible to defeat U.S. policies that may be favorable to Canada."

NO EVIDENCE

The Canadian association said Wednesday there is no need and no evidence to justify restrictions on exports of Canadian softwoods to the United States.

"If the Canadian lumbermen want a cooling-off period in order to give them more time to increase their exports to the United States, then of course we won't agree," Bahr said.

CAN UNDERSELL

"The Canadian association is well aware that through Canadian dollar exchange manipulation Canada is able to underbid U.S. softwoods in the U.S. market. We are faced with increased unemployment. All we are asking is for a fair settlement. We have offered to give Canada 10 per cent of the U.S. market—without tariffs—providing U.S. rates go up to 10 per cent ad valorem on additional quantities shipped."

She Knew She'd Be On Top—or Dead

VANCOUVER (CP)—Through the gray light of dawn Mrs. Esther Kafer could see the peak of Mount Waddington rising 13,000 feet into the sky.

"I knew before the day was over I'd be on top—or dead," she said.

In 1960 she lost four close friends who died in an attempt to scale British Columbia's highest mountain. For days before the climb she was frightened.

As the mother of two children she often wondered if she was being foolish.

The petite, 105-pound housewife did reach the top of the 13,200-foot peak 200 miles north of Vancouver, with three men.

She was the first woman ever to make the difficult ascent.

"For days before the climb I had been scared," she said.

leading the way and her husband, Martin, and Jim Martin of Vancouver following.

When the party reached the summit "we sat on a rock about the size of a large table, with nothing all around us. That's how sharp Mount Waddington is."

"We could see as far as Vancouver Island (100 miles away). I was so excited that I kissed all the men as they reached the top. I've climbed Mount Blanc, the highest mountain in Europe, but the thrill you get from the top of Mount Waddington in B.C. is out of this world."

Mrs. Kafer made the final assault on the peak with three men July 25.

She said that ever since Elfreda Pigou and Joan Stirling of North Vancouver died in an attempt to climb the mountain "I had a fear—and yet a desire—to climb this mountain."

"Hypnotism will not help anyone to do anything he is not capable of," said one doctor.

India Ready To Accept UN Rockets

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—India has agreed to have a rocket launching station on its territory under international supervision for international use.

Prime Minister Nehru told a questioner in the upper house of parliament Wednesday.

It would be situated near the geomagnetic equator, which passes through Kerala, South India, he added.
